GUEST WRITER'S VIEWPOINT

Affair of Gouzenko Bound to Leave Scars

By WILLIAM H. HESSLER

Many years ago, in a transparent attempt to disarm the fears and resentments of the democratic world, Benito Mussolini walked out onto his favorite balcony and said "Fascism is not a commodity for export." Whether he was sincere or not makes little difference. For no country has the means of preventing the export of political ideas and systems. And no country, if it lives in freedom, has any way of preventing the importation of ideas. It is even harder to block the migration of a political idea than to check the spread of a virus infection across a political frontier.

The principal contagion now prevalent in the United States, commonly called McCarthyism, was not fabricated for export, of course. And unlike Fascism or Communism, it is not a formal body of doctrine, a political system. Yet it would be rash to say it is not exportable. In sober truth, nothing is so likely to spread by its own inner dynamic as a climate of suspicion, because it feeds on itself and creates the conditions in which suspicion can thrive and multiply.

It has been my privilege, as a guest of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, to travel across western Canada in the last 10 days, addressing its various branches—and also consoling with fellow-newspapermen at each stop. This happens to have been an unusual period in Canadian-American relations. Each day I have been here, the relations of your country and mine have grown worse—for which I take no responsibility. I am sure this will blow over, this sudden upsurge of anger and resentment over the Gouzenko business. But it will leave some scars, as words spoken in anger usually do.

Warnings Against the Plague of Fear

Before leaving Canada, with the warmest feelings for its people and admiration for their spectacular industrial progress, I welcome the opportunity to warn them—if a warning is needed—against the plague of fear and suspicion that has spread over my own country. They cannot erect a tariff wall against ideas—good ones or bad. Their protection against the inroads of hysteria must lie in their own steadfast affirmation of democratic principle and civil liberty.

In sundry forms, over quite some years, the thing we now call McCarthyism has done enormous damage in the United States. It includes the systematic harassment of those who make and conduct our foreign policy. And it has shattered the morale and the efficiency of our foreign service. It has induced such timidity in the State Department as to impair our foreign policy measurably.

It has encroached on the rights of Americans as individuals. Congressional investigating committees, under the guise of ferreting out Reds, have come to the point of trying people in the headlines and destroying public reputations without establishing proof, without giving their victims the protections they would have in a court of law.

Equally serious, McCarthyism has reduced America's prestige abroad and has poisoned our relations with various foreign countries— allies and partners of immense value to American security. The recriminations of the last 10 days across the Canadian-American border provide the most vivid example of this to date. We have seen the engines of personal attack and vilification in the United States turned against the foreign minister of Canada, just as they have been turned against various upright and innocent Americans in years past.

Canada Well Inoculated Against the Virus

This is itself an export shipment of McCarthyism—a small and in itself a laughable shipment, so preposterous is the charge. Yet if it proves possible for Senator William Jenner's subcommittee to come to Canada at its own demand and interrogate a Canadian citizen, we shall have to set it down in the record that the export of McCarthyism is under way in earnest.

From my observations of the last 10 days, however, based on conversation with several hundreds of Canadians in many cities and from many callings, I have the strong feeling that Canada is well inoculated against the virus. I have not found even one person who is not well aware of the evil and the mischief of this outlook of suspicion, this technique of smearing by unproved accusation, that we label McCarthyism.

This is your one and only rampart, in Canada. You cannot block off the infiltration of hysterical fears by closing the border. You cannot shut out the flow of news, or of comment on the news. Nor should you try. Only as you are resolved not to give way to the tyranny of fear can you preserve the calm, sane outlook that respects the individual's right to a good reputation unless he is proved to be unworthy.

I have one more observation to make—that McCarthyism, by whatever name, is a hardy disease. It is far easier to prevent, before infection, than to cure after the tissues of the body politic are contaminated.

THANKSGIVING MARKED BY MILLIONS IN U.S.

NEW YORK (CP)—Americans celebrated Thanksgiving today—thankful that the shooting war was over in Korea. Millions of prayers were offered for this and other blessings.

Special Thanksgiving services were held in churches and many Americans at home later attended massive street parades and football games before going home to traditional turkey dinners.

President and Mrs. Eisenhower were on a short vacation in Augusta, Ga., and attended church early in the day. They planned to dine with members of the family.

Stipulations Bother U.S.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Gouzenko controversy, apparently resolved Wednesday, was higher in the air than ever today.

Canada, after insisting United States requests, said it is willing to arrange a secret meeting between Igor Gouzenko and "any person" designated by the U.S. government.

There were three "ifs" Gouzenko must agree, the meeting must be under Canadian auspices—that is, in Canada—and the Canadian government must give its approval before any Gouzenko testimony could be made public.

The last stipulation stuck in the craw of Senator William Jenner, chairman of the U.S. Senate internal security subcommittee which wants to quiz Gouzenko, former code clerk in the Soviet embassy here who barred operations of a Russian spy network in Canada in 1945.

Jenner said his committee could not pledge to keep the Gouzenko testimony secret.

In a letter to State Secretary Dulles asking that negotiations be continued with Canada, Jenner added: "At the same time, if there is reason to keep the evidence secret, the subcommittee will use the discretion it always has used in these matters affecting security and comity between nations."

External Affairs Minister Pearson, who outlined Canada's position in the case Wednesday in the Commons and tabled the reply to the second U.S. request to question Gouzenko, said of the Jenner statement: "We came to our decision after careful consideration. We will look carefully at any new proposal that may come from the state department."

DECLINES COMMENT

He declined further comment, but other government sources said Canada is extremely unlikely to back down on the conditions. The government had given the matter a lot of thought and its stand had been approved by all sections of the opposition.

There was no indication here whether Dulles would pass on. (Continued on Page 28)

Tory Forces Win Vote on Television

LONDON (CP)—Government supporters tonight defeated by a vote of 157 to 87 an attempt by "rebel" Conservative peers in the House of Lords to condemn plans for introducing commercial television in Britain.

The vote followed a spirited two-day debate in which a powerful group of Tory lords urged Prime Minister Churchill's government to drop its scheme to set up a public corporation which would operate TV stations in rivalry with the state-owned BBC.

With the support of some Liberals and Labor peers, the "rebels" had objected to the plan to provide time on the new stations for advertising. They agreed that a second TV network was desirable but urged that it be run by the BBC.

Meanwhile, a Conservative rebellion against Churchill's war pension policy spread in the Commons despite government efforts to head it off.

Prince Alexandre of Liechtenstein... he piles lumber.

JUST CALL ME ALEX...

Liechtenstein Prince Labors in City Mill

By TONY DICKASON

"Call me Alex," says Prince Alexandre de Liechtenstein.

He says it with an accent, with cultured overtones and a broad, friendly grin.

The six-foot-one-inch prince has been working in Victoria the past week, piling lumber. "I like it and I'm learning," he says.

Prince Alex has been in Canada just 10 days after studying forestry in Vienna. "Wood is wood, but here it is bigger," he says.

The 24-year-old prince "just wants to be one of the fellows" and hopes "the firm is not angry because I talk with you." He comes from the tiny principality of Liechtenstein (population 12,000), tucked in the Alps between Austria and Switzerland.

As Alex explains it, his country was originally a wealthy man's hobby. In 1712 John Adam Liechtenstein—"a great-great great—I am not sure—grandfather"—bought the place from Austria. The reigning prince is Franz Joseph Liechtenstein. Alex's father is Franz Joseph's cousin.

The title "prince" is limited to male members of the ruling Liechtenstein family. Daughters are called "princesses." Alex's sister Elizabeth—Princess Elizabeth—is working for dress designer Christian Dior of Paris.

About his work here Prince Alex said it is "hard. But I'll be used to it soon. I do my best."

NICE—BUT LONELY

His employers said the prince is "a very pleasant chap with a nice personality." He's not wealthy. His salary is his sole support. Before the war his family had "plenty" of money, but today things have changed.

Alex lives in a small room. His landlady, who knows nothing about his aristocratic background, said: "I don't know anything about any princes living here. But there is one tall young man who could be one."

She was right.

Alex is "not married."

He expressed the somewhat wistful thought he would not be averse to meeting a few Victoria girls. He doesn't care about titles, only first names.

But the recheck, which was requested by Finance Minister Einar Gunderson, is only in the early stages after starting at 9 a.m.

With 21 polls rechecked, Liberal George Gregory's 93-vote lead was cut to 91. This occurred when Mr. Gunderson picked up a vote and Mr. Gregory lost one during the check.

The returning officer, who first thought the recheck would not be completed until Friday night, said progress had been better than expected and the job may be finished tonight or Friday morning.

COUNTED LAST

The important 269 absentee votes cast by hospital patients and election workers will be counted last.

The recheck is being conducted at the returning officer's headquarters, 911 Government Street. More than a dozen workers are on the job.

They will work from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and from 7 to 10 p.m. The night work cannot be forced on them. Under the Elections Act the count can continue at night only by consent of the workers.

Unity Necessary To Peace, Says Roks

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—South Korea warned today it still expects the peninsula to be unified by Jan. 27—or else.

Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tae cautioned the ROK government "might do something which the world will know about" if the delayed and still uncalled Korean peace conference fails by that date.

Pyun refused to reveal what action his government may take if Korea is still split by Communism and Democracy on the deadline date. However, guarded ROK statements have threatened South Korea may re-open the war if the peace parley fails to give the nation one government by Jan. 27.

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—Communist China is building up Red military strength in North Korea, a South Korean diplomat charged today.

Gen. Kim Hong Il, envoy to Nationalist China, said the Peiping government is shipping to North Korea "great amounts of munitions."

He blamed Russia for establishing an "international army" in its satellite states and although he did not name North Korea he apparently meant its army is Soviet-backed.

Official Figures Tonight Or Friday; Recheck Slowed By Judicial-Recount Threat

The first few hours' rechecking of ballots cast in the Tuesday by-election resulted in no appreciable change in standings. Returning Officer Alan B. Macfarlane said today.

Vishinsky Claims Reds Have Other Weapons

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Russia's Andrei Vishinsky said today the West doesn't have everything in the field of atomic weapons.

Vishinsky told the UN's 60-nation political committee that both the United States and the Soviet Union have atomic and hydrogen bombs and then went on to claim possession of other weapons.

He did not specify what they were, but said Western government authorities should ask their scientific experts for reports on the progress of Soviet science and especially in the practical realm of applied science.

Vishinsky was replying to a statement made last week by British minister of state, Selwyn Lloyd. Lloyd told the committee that the Soviet Union plugged for an unconditional prohibition of the atomic and hydrogen bombs because that was a field where it was weaker than the West.

KEY WEAPON

Vishinsky said the West claimed the atomic bomb was a "key weapon" in its hands and said it is "likewise a key weapon in the hands of the Soviet Union."

It is "nothing but a myth," Vishinsky claimed, to say that the Soviet Union is weaker in the field of nuclear weapons than the Western powers.

Vishinsky was speaking in support of Russia's 1953-model "peace plan" which, among other things, calls for the unconditional prohibition of nuclear weapons.

Vishinsky asked why United States wanted air bases around the Soviet Union.

"So your airmen can meet Russian girls and play gramophone records of the 'You, You, You' variety?" he asked. "So you can cuddle up a little closer to the Soviet Union?"

"Oh no," he answered himself, "so you can invade the Soviet Union." If the west tries that, he declared, it will meet the fate of the German armies at Stalingrad.

2,000 KIDDIES VIEWED

Queen, Duke Busy On Jamaica Visit

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—The Queen today reviewed a military parade and greeted 2,000 school children in colorful ceremonies marking the second day of the Royal visit to this British rum and sugar colony.

The children waited four abreast in 16 rows on the length of the cricket field at Kingston's Sabina park for the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Proudest youngster of them all was Barbara Le Wars, 15, who thanked the Queen "for the great delight you have given the children of Jamaica." She presented an array of Jamaican handicraft products to the Royal couple as a token of the loyalty and affection which all the people of this island feel for you.

At the parade the Queen met the island's top military figures and their wives.

A tour of Kingston and a formal welcome from the legislature at Government House were also on the program.

Davis had stopped the car earlier to let his wife take over and she started up while he was walking around the rear of the car.

Decision Soon On Gas Export From Alberta

Premier Manning Sees St. Laurent

OTTAWA (CP)—Premier Manning of Alberta said today he hopes his government will be able to announce next week its decision on the question of export of natural gas from that province.

The premier was to confer later today with Prime Minister St. Laurent on several points in connection with the release of gas from Alberta. He declined in an interview to say what specific questions would be under discussion.

Mr. Manning had with him the final report of the Alberta petroleum and natural gas conservation board, containing recommendations as to how much surplus gas could be let out of the province.

The progress of discussions, Mr. Manning said, will determine when the Alberta cabinet reaches its decision.

"If we make good progress here, it might be some time next week," he said.

Mr. Manning added he might have further conferences with government members Friday, depending on how today's talks go.

Railway Men Seek Five-Day Week, Pay Increases

MONTREAL (BUP)—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen served notice today it would go after a pay raise, a five-day week and better vacation benefits in its next agreement with the nation's major railroads.

Officials of the independent union said the demand for changes was drafted at a three-day conference here last week and would be turned over to its local across the country before being submitted to the companies. The major operators affected are the government-owned Canadian National and privately-operated Canadian Pacific Railway companies.

Present union contracts expire Feb. 15. They specify that notice of any proposed changes must be served on the companies at least 30 days before the old contracts run out.

Detectives Say Robbery Motive For Slaying 55-Year Messenger

TORONTO (BUP)—Two youths were arrested in their beds by police early today and charged with the murder of Fred (Scotty) Cameron, whose bullet-riddled body was found almost a month ago in a watery ditch near Stroud, Ont.

William Stephen Kingsley, 19, and Ian Francis Robertson, 20, both of Toronto, were arraigned before Magistrate Gordon Foster in Barrie and remanded one week. Neither spoke as the formal charge against them was read.

Archie McCathie, Toronto chief of detectives, said robbery had been established as the motive for the slaying.

Police said the two suspects were acquainted with Cameron and had been under watch for two weeks. Police also were reported to have seized an automobile, in which Cameron allegedly was kidnapped and taken to the lonely country road where he was robbed and slain, before arresting the pair. The arrest was made by Inspector Alex McLeod of the criminal investigation division of the Provincial Police, and Detective Sgt. Barney Simmons of Toronto city police, after long and painstaking investigation. Officials refused, however, to disclose any of the clues which led them to the youths.

Cameron, 55, messenger for a Toronto investment brokerage firm, was found dead Oct. 30. His body bore five bullet holes. His pockets had been rifled and police said robbery was the only motive they could think of for the crime.

Friends described him as "a good natured Scot." "He's the last fellow in the world one would expect to be murdered," one detective said.

Cameron was a former professional soccer player in Wolverhampton, England.

Kidnap-Killers Feast In Shadow of Death

But Hall and Mrs. Heady Not Together For Their Final Thanksgiving Turkey Dinner

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UP)—Kidnap-killers Carl Austin Hall and Bonnie Brown Heady spent the last holiday of their lives today feasting on double rations of Thanksgiving turkey.

The infamous pair prepared to dine in solitude within sight of the gas chamber building where they will die in three weeks.

Turkey dinners will be served to Mrs. Heady and Hall in their death row cells separated by six empty rooms. The two will not see each other today and probably will not meet again until the day of their execution.

On that day they will again be served a feast if they request it.

The first meal today for the two killers was the regular prison breakfast. The Thanksgiving meal, served at 11 a.m., consists of roast turkey, candied yams, giblet gravy, peas, onion dressing, cranberries, celery, pickles, pumpkin pie, hot buns and coffee.

At 3 p.m. they will have cold turkey and leftovers.

NO PENNILESS It was revealed that both Hall and his alcoholic paramour will die penniless.

Hall, who once spent a $200,000 inheritance in three years and came into possession of the record $600,000 ransom money paid for his victim, has no estate requiring probating.

Mrs. Heady inherited the $15,000 home in St. Joseph, Mo., behind which Bobby Greenleaf was buried briefly. She also inherited a farm near Maryville, Mo., valued at $32,000. However, since her arrest and conviction she has deeded her property and possessions to an aging aunt, Mrs. Nellie Baker of Chicago.

2 Toronto Youths Face Murder Trial

BARRIE, Ont. (CP)—Two Toronto youths, Ian Robertson, 21, and William Stephen Kingsley, 17, were formally charged here today with the murder of Fred Scotty Cameron whose bullet-riddled body was found in this district Oct. 30.

The two, arrested in Toronto Wednesday night, were remanded for one week.

Cameron, 60, was a Toronto man. His body, shot through the head and chest, was found propped against a fence near Barrie, 50 miles north of Toronto.

Seattle Pier Guarded With Bayonets

Guardsmen Move in On Shipping Tie-Up

SEATTLE (AP)—Coast Guardsmen with fixed bayonets stood guard at Pier 56 for seven hours Wednesday to avert possible disorders in a jurisdictional dispute between two unions over stewards assigned to the passenger ship Aleutian.

The Coast Guard and police were called when some 400 AFL sailors escorted AFL stewards through a picket line set up by the Independent Marine Cooks and Stewards Union.

The pickets later were withdrawn in obedience to an injunction signed by Superior Judge Roger J. Meakin and the Aleutian sailed at 10 p.m. for San Francisco.

The independent union placed pickets around the pier where the Aleutian was docked, after failing to reach an agreement with the AFL union over which union should assign stewards to the vessel.

Alberta Air Search Aided By Weather

EDMONTON, Alta. (BUP)—Ten planes were withdrawn today from the search for a missing ambulance plane which vanished en route from Grande Prairie to Edmonton Sunday night.

The search was resumed for the fourth day with only 17 planes. RCAF officials said weather conditions would be better than Wednesday when fog, freezing rain and low visibility halted the search at night-fall.

Two planes concentrated Wednesday on the hottest clue to date—reports of flares sighted in the Rocky Mountain foothills. They could find no trace of either the missing Cessna 180 or the flares.

The plane carried Gordon W. MacDonald, 32, of Edmonton, the pilot; Dr. Donald Eilson, of Grande Prairie, and Lloyd Williams, 33, his polo partner who was being rushed here for emergency treatment in an iron lung.

No trial date has been set. Officials have said they are looking for a third person in the case.

Both Mrs. Wells and Warren have maintained they are innocent of the killing.

Alberta Farmer To Stand Trial For Shooting

WETASKIWIN, Alta. (CP)—Adolph Phillip, 60-year-old farmer in the nearby Yeoford district, was committed for trial Wednesday on a charge of murder in the shooting of Fritz Gurgens, 34, a son-in-law.

Gurgens was shot June 30 and lived 13 days in hospital here with a 22 calibre bullet in the abdomen. He died July 23.

Preliminary hearing of the charge against Phillip was postponed several times while accused was under observation.

THIEVES RUN GRID BLOCK

VANCOUVER (CP)—With the Grey Cup football classic drawing nigh, even Vancouver's underworld is adapting its techniques to conform. Police warned shopkeepers of a pair of thieves who operate in this fashion:

One shops for groceries and hands the cashier a $10 bill in payment, then drifts over toward right tackle so she has to turn her back on the second man, who snatches the bills from the till.

Then the first man runs interference and they go for a score.

So far, the system has worked successfully in several attempts.

Ontario Gets Big Snowfall

TORONTO (CP)—Parts of Ontario got up to eight inches of snow today, while some centres in the Maritimes were chalking up the warmest Nov. 26 in history.

At Welland, eight-inch drifts tied up traffic and weather officials said another five inches would be expected before the end of the day. At St. Catharines, six inches fell overnight and communications were disrupted in some parts of the Niagara peninsula.

The Maritimes were caught in a belt of warm air from the southern United States which shot temperatures at Chatham, N.B., to 64, and at Yarmouth and Moncton to 62 during the night—highest for the date in history.

Southern Ontario's snow belt, caused by winds off Lake Erie, was only 10 to 15 miles wide. Hamilton, 25 miles from snow-bound St. Catharines, had bare streets today.

Vancouver was colder than usual today, with a high about 45 expected. Prairie temperatures varied. Edmonton reached 39 Wednesday, Calgary 46, and Regina 35. Light snow fell in Winnipeg, with a high of 30 expected today.

Medical Profession Should Draft National Health Plan Says Doctor

TORONTO (BUP)—Some sort of government controlled national health plan is inevitable and the medical profession should show that it wants to protect the interests of the public by drafting one at once, a prominent Ontario doctor said Wednesday.

Dr. C. E. Duff Wilson, medical officer of health for Kitchener, told an Ontario Medical Association conference on public relations that the old personal doctor-patient rapport was breaking down.

"We must realize," Dr. Wilson said, "that some sort of national health plan, which will be government controlled, is inevitable. We should set to work to study and write one on that basis."

"We have given the public the impression that we are consistently looking after our own interests, whereas they should be getting the impression that we are safeguarding theirs."

Dr. Wilson added that the public is becoming more inquisitive about medical facts and

"the ordinary man has certain rights in this regard." "We still have a tendency to mumble mystic words and take refuge behind the mystique of our profession," he said.

"Specialization and group practice have both helped to break down the personal relationship and the public resents receiving accounts from doctors whom they see only rarely, and then in what it seems to them to be a casual, offhand, even hurried and impatient manner."

BEHIND A BARREL—SOMWHAT DARING

Aline Disrobes for Charity

(Editor's note: United Press Hollywood correspondent Aline Mosby achieved a singular distinction recently by becoming the first newspaper woman to cover a nudist convention in the all-together. Now the nudists once again want her to take her clothes off—and this time give them away.)

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD (UP)—The nudists of America, including me, celebrate Thanksgiving today with a drive to collect used clothing.

New President For France

PARIS (AP)—The next president of the French republic will be chosen December 17, the executive committee of the National Assembly decided today.

The president will be elected at a closed session of the National Assembly and the Upper House, the council of the republic, sitting in Versailles palace.

There are no announced candidates for the post, which has little real executive power. The retiring president is Socialist Vincent Auriol.

Among those considered possible choices are Premier Joseph Laniel, Assembly President Edouard Herriot and Foreign Minister Georges Bidault.

clothe the nudists, the local leaders hasten to explain, but a charity drive for people who wear clothes.

The nudists have decided to give up the clothes they don't need to people who do in the war-torn areas of Korea and Europe.

"Nudists can do without clothes better than most people, so we can help this needy cause," according to an announcement from Mervin Mounce, Spokane, Wash., president of the American Sunbathers' Association, Inc.

This communique was brought to me by two local nudists, June and Ed (no last names, please). Since I uncovered the nudists' national convention last August in appropriate attire (my birthday suit), the nudists now regard me as one of their own.

The clothing drive started at the nudists' chapter in Philadelphia, explained June. "A nudist club collected old clothing to send to poor fellow nudists in Germany."

"So we decided at nudist Thanksgiving dinners all over the nation the admission will be a bundle of used clothing."

Most of the nudists will not take off their own clothes to donate while they chew on a drumstick. It's too cold in November. In Florida and at June's own party in Palm Springs, however, the guests will wear only bibs while they dig into the cranberry sauce and mince pie.

June decided I should be photographed donating a few garments of my own to this project. I gave up a blouse and other things while standing behind a barrel, feeling somewhat daring. However, I noticed that the United Press photographer who went along thought this was now old stuff. He yawned to hurry up because he was late to a boxing match.

FBI Nab Three In Huge Theft

Loots From $681,700 Armed Car Robbery Keeps Trio in Style

BOSTON, Mass. (UP)—Authorities today revealed how an ex-convict took his family from a tenement existence into middle-class society on the loot from a record $681,700 armored car robbery.

The ex-convict, George Douglas O'Brien, 43, and his son George Jr., 19, were behind bars at Charles Street jail, within sight of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where the youth made brilliant marks posing as the son of a wealthy contractor.

The elder O'Brien was held in lieu of $100,000 bail charged with "theft of a property belonging to a Federal Reserve Bank in violation of the federal bank robbery-larceny statute."

The son's bond was set at $5,000. He was charged with "receiving stolen property belonging to a Federal Reserve Bank." A similar charge was filed against O'Brien's wife and her bond is set at $1,000 but she was released to care for the couple's two children, Thomas, 7, and John, 5.

FBI agents arrested the three Wednesday—20 months to the day after history's biggest armored car theft was pulled off in daylight in busy Danvers Square while three guards sipped coffee in a nearby drugstore.

Authorities said a "substantial" part of the loot had been recovered and that other persons had been implicated in the case. But no new arrests were expected immediately, they said.

O'Brien, his wife, and son denied knowledge of the robbery. The neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. McGilvray, said Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien were known generally as a "nice couple."

State Patrolman Ned Redmond said Gilfillan later admitted the attempted holdup which netted him nothing.

SIX MEN FROM SINKING SHIP PICKED UP BY ARCTIC SEALER

HALIFAX, N.S. (BUP)—Six men who abandoned the schooner Dantzie when it started sinking off Flint Island, near Sydney, were picked up Wednesday night by the Halifax cargo vessel Arctic Sealer.

The Arctic Sealer found the men 21 miles northeast of Scatar Island off eastern Cape Breton. It radioed that they were all in good condition.

The coal carrier Wabana sighted the Dantzie earlier in the day but reported it had been abandoned and was sinking. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police cutter MacBrien called off an extensive search for the men when they were reported safe.

The Dantzie was on a run from its home port at Fortune, Nfld., when it sprang a leak and began sinking Tuesday.

The Unbalanced Budget

THE STARTLING CONTRAST between the balanced budget of Canada and the unbalanced budget of the United States may be of some national satisfaction to Canadians at first sight. In a larger view it should be as disturbing to us, and to the entire free world, as it is to the American people. For it can never be said that the world's finances are in order while its greatest nation, whose affairs intimately affect us all, is in huge and continual deficit.

During the current fiscal year, ending June 30 next, the United States government will run behind by about $4 billions, almost the total amount of the Canadian budget. That is bad enough—especially in a government which promised above all things to balance the budget—but the prospects for the following fiscal year are much worse. If there is no change in present taxation and expenditure the deficit of the next fiscal year would reach nearly $10 billions, which would be dangerous and intolerable.

The Eisenhower government, having denounced the Democrats for their deficits as ruinous, has lately lowered its sights. The hope of a balanced budget—the core of the President's election campaign a year ago—has been quietly abandoned for the visible future. The government will be lucky indeed if it can avoid larger deficits than Mr. Truman's.

This year expenditures have been cut by $6.5 billions, but this economy has been more than outweighed by tax reductions of $8 billions, to take effect next spring. The government will try to effect more economies but they cannot begin to span the gulf between expenditure and revenue. It is therefore compelled, against all its wishes and promises, to devise new taxes. Even if it can get them through the Congress in a sensitive election year they will only reduce, without eliminating, the prospective deficit for the year beginning next July 1.

All this simply means that, in times of peak production and prosperity the United States will pay part of its current costs by borrowing, even though the present legal debt ceiling of $275 billions has been almost reached and soon will be broken. Moreover, the government is not borrowing all the money it needs out of the existing money supply and real savings. It has resorted also to bank borrowing which results, through the banking system, in the creation of new money and new inflationary pressure.

At the same time the deflationary fiscal policy of higher interest rates, begun by the Democrats and expanded by the present administration last spring, has been quietly reversed and the government already is talking less like Mr. Eisenhower in 1952 than the late Lord Keynes in the great depression of the thirties.

Canada's immediate position is entirely different—a balanced budget, a huge reduction in wartime debt and the strongest currency in the world. But it should never be forgotten that the United States is in difficulty mainly because of its huge expenditures for the defense of itself and the free world, costs that absorb about three-quarters of the American budget. And it should not be forgotten either that any inflationary pressures generated in Washington will quickly ooze through the international boundary and through out the world economy.

A Share for All

A REPORT ON PAGE 5 OF THE Times last Tuesday summed up the conclusions of experts who gathered recently at Quebec to chart Canada's progress during the next half-century. Prominent among the predictions of economic, political and cultural growth was the comment that "Canadians will have done their part to maintain peace in the world. They will not have hoarded their natural resources, realizing that world prosperity is indivisible."

It is interesting, and encouraging, that such a factor should be included as a natural adjunct to any assessment of Canada's development, for in the news columns the same day appeared a stern warning of what could happen if the "have" nations of the world do not share their benefits with the "have-nots."

Norris E. Dodd, director of the U.N. Food and Agricultural Organization, told a world conference of his group in Rome that the food crisis of the globe must be solved or we will suffer the "revolutionary wrath" of the hungry peoples.

Present government plans and programs, Mr. Norris said, are not enough to offer "significant improvement" in the world food situation. "Millions who are short of food and other necessities... are demanding action to improve their lot."

In a world of some two and a half billion, of whom a billion are estimated to be hungry even now, and which is expected to add another billion inhabitants by the end of the century, that is a serious condition. Obviously the solution must come from those peoples who are in the fortunate position of having surplus goods.

But merely doing out food will not be enough. The aid, to be of lasting benefit, must be in the form of capital investment, technical knowledge and promotion of trade which will enable the backward peoples to improve their own standard of living. With this will have to be allied some program of population limitation, for past experience shows that where increased food supplies result automatically in an increase in the number of mouths to feed, no gain is made. Indeed the position may become even more perilous.

A start has been made on each of the two types of plan. The U.N. food organization has done much to provide immediate assistance. It looks now to surplus wheat in Canada and the United States, surplus cotton and dairy products in the U.S., surplus beef and sugar in France, and fruits, vegetables and other products in other parts of Europe, to provide further relief.

In long-term planning, the Colombo Plan, Truman's Point Four program and similar schemes have pointed the way. But they are only a start on the main problem. The "revolutionary wrath" still threatens and sooner or later the problem must be met.

Misstep in Bermuda

THE DAILY MIRROR AND THE Daily Herald of London have received a familiar complaint in their protest against Bermuda's official reception for the Queen and Duke of Edinburgh. The two newspapers object to the absence from the state banquet of any Negro representative.

One of the publications calls for "an end to blind snobbery" and points out that 60 per cent of the population of Bermuda is colored.

Surely the countries included in the itinerary of the Royal tour understand that the visits by the Queen and her consort are more than narrowly restricted social events. A monarch is undertaking an arduous world-circling trip to familiarize herself to the peoples who compose the Commonwealth and Empire. She cannot, of course, meet each one personally. But it should be the effort of all local organizations to see that she is given the opportunity to have some contact with representatives of the different racial and social groups in these countries.

Queen Elizabeth is queen of all the peoples in her different lands. It would be tragic if exclusiveness by local committees in the different centres she visits convinced the less fortunate citizens that they were beneath acceptance.

Speaking for the Dumb

THIS WEEK THE VICTORIA SOCIETY for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals opened its annual campaign for funds to carry on its work for those who cannot speak for themselves.

The society needs approximately $10,000 a year to finance its wide-spread services. It can raise that money only by public subscription.

As it asks citizens of this community to give generously, the SPCA points to the varied work it undertakes on behalf of animals. In addition to maintaining its shelter, the society cares for lost and injured animals, finds homes for those that are unclaimed and tries to educate the public in the proper treatment of pets. It engages an inspector to carry out various duties ranging from the inspection of slaughterhouses, pet shops, traveling shows, and pounds, to spreading information on the humane treatment of domestic and wild creatures.

Here is an agency that deserves public support—an agency whose work should be particularly appreciated in this community where individual families show such devotion to their pets.

LOOSE ENDS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The Age of Prunery

SOME eminent professor of Oxford has undertaken a fascinating task which should appeal to the literate and illiterate alike, and even, perhaps, to the writer and readers of this column. The professor has attempted to distinguish the spoken from the written word.

Now, the written word, from remote ages, is pretty well known. We can read, if we wish, the writings of Plato as easily as those of Mr. Walter Winchell, and possibly with even more profit. We know how Shakespeare wrote. But, also, we cannot tell how Shakespeare spoke. The gossip of the Marmalade Tavern, or of Dr. Johnson's Club (even with the indefatigable Boswell on hand with his notebook) are lost to us forever. And this is tragic since the spoken is always more important, revealing and interesting than the written.

I AM prepared to believe, indeed, that most of the world's highest wisdom is uttered spontaneously in common speech and then forgotten. Few men are capable of putting down in written words anything worth remembering. The humblest citizen often utters thoughts that lie too deep for tears, immortal wisdom and the final revelations of human character which no words of themselves can carry, even if they were instantly recorded—intangible intimations which are conveyed not alone by speech, but by manner, expression, gesture and the fleeting look of a human eye. Just as all the best stories and anecdotes are seldom printed and very often are unprintable.

So the English professor, by diligent search, has tried to gather together what small remnants of actual speech remain in dusty records. There are not many older than the last century.

Today, of course, the newspapers, radio and television manage to catch the bird on the wing and the speaker unaware. We know how a Churchill, an Eisenhower or some humble man in a quiz contest speaks, naturally and without preparation. Before the use of shorthand and the emergence of the gossip writer, the casual words of great men or ordinary people were seldom recorded. But there are a few relics, in the records of ancient trials and forgotten diaries, that give us at least some flavor of our ancestors' actual speech. These have been put together as a faint echo of the past ages.

THEY would seem to indicate what one has long suspected—that men spoke better when they knew less. They could hardly speak worse than they do nowadays.

At one time, as among Dr. Johnson's cronies, or Walpole's precious set, conversation was a high art and men were as careful in what they said as in what they wrote. Conversation of that sort, however, was always confined to a few skilled practitioners, and never reflected the speech and manner of the citizenry at large.

The scant records remaining suggest that the speech of the citizenry was more direct, vital, gusty, incisive and human when citizens generally knew little and cared less for grammar or convention. Nowadays almost every body in a civilized country can speak grammatically. The speech of the laborer differs very little from the speech of the professor, except that it is likely to be more entertaining and to the point. In speech, as in everything else, we are becoming uniform and about as distinguishable and striking as a package of prunes in a cellophane wrapping.

THAT is the tragedy of modern civilization—it covers everything, even the human creature and his most sacred inner thoughts, with the cellophane of education and manners. The wildest and most uninhibited child soon becomes a prune. We all become prunes in cellophane before we are old enough to vote for other prunes.

AND observe what happens when even a great educationist cries out against the prune theory. Not long ago President Smith, of Toronto University, declared that what this country needs is more individualism, heresy and non-conformist thinking, a return to the free and spacious minds of our grandfathers, alone on the frontier.

THE reaction of the educated prunery was instantaneous. Trained, regulated, regimented and packaged in prunishness, the students of the university could think of no way to express their secret yearnings but by such dull pranks as dormitory raids and the bricking up of the college doorways.

THAT is not what our ancestors would have done. Shakespeare would have thought of something better. Dr. Johnson would have coined a ringing phrase. The Canadian, Sir John A. Macdonald, would have contrived some more effective rebellion, for he had already proved his individualism and pioneer humor by lighting a London hotel on fire while smoking in bed, by assaulting the crowds of London with a pea-shooter, by dumping bags of flour on the heads of the Derby Day multitude, and by chaperoning a dancing bear through an American vaudeville circuit. And if you doubt the vigor of his speech, read his remarks to the parliamentary opposition, including the classic announcement that "I can lick him as quick as hell can sing a feather."

That was before the age of education, politeness and uniformity, the era of prunes, the rule of cellophane.

FREEDOM OF OPINION

The Universal Declaration of Human Rights was adopted and proclaimed by the U.N. on Dec. 10, 1948. Article 19 is at the present confused condition of the world worth much more consideration than it is getting. The following is a reproduction of it:

"Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression; this right includes freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers."

Have the membership of the U.N. any knowledge of the above and if so, have they not deliberately disregarded it? Is the public familiar with it? I doubt it, or their united voice would register the strongest opposition to the policy of imposing the will of the dominant nations upon those more poorly equipped to resist.

Should this policy be successfully practiced, can anyone doubt the final outcome? The answer is not hard to find, and it is one which should cause us some unpleasant moments. Have the various nations no economic problems at home that would give their ablest statesmen a full-time job? They might find a beam or two to remove from their own eye before looking for the mote in other nations' eyes.

CAR OWNER'S RIGHTS

The hue and cry re the down town bus stops seems necessary. Something had to be done.

At the same time let us not forget that the car owner has some rights, too. Some well-thought-out provision will have to be made so that car owners can pick up or let out their wives or other passengers without breaking the law by double parking, etc.

THE DAYS OF KARSH

In these days of Yousuf Karsh, apparently, we are in no danger of losing our soul, for it reposes in the envelope of Bruce Hutchison, concealed within his magic pen, no doubt. How comforting to know that in spite of scarlet-lined cloaks, a vanished lighthouse, aerial flower pots, Tudor inclinations, our soul is safe—the pen being mightier than the sword.

But what about our secret, for which Bruce Hutchison also assumes full responsibility? I like to think that this resides within ourselves, hidden behind the folds of our many facades, unto the mists of antiquity.

I believe it is something we sense, something we feel, something greater than ourselves—like amalgamation—something hidden in the folds of a woman's skirt and a man's jacket. It hides behind every corner and speaks to us with every accent. We look at each other and we say, "Why, you are the secret. It's ourselves!" We cannot escape it. We have built our city within the environs of our secret, within the bouquet of our soul scenting the very air we breathe.

Cousin Weakeyes

Easing Cold War Tensions

By WALTER LIPPMANN, From Bern

IN VIENNA, which I visited last week after having been to London, Paris and Bonn, there is much evidence to support the views that Soviet policy in Europe does not look forward to a settlement—negotiated at any level—but that it is seeking to relax the tensions of the cold war.

It can virtually be taken for granted that the Soviet Union has decided not to sign an Austrian peace treaty. For this would compel it to remove its army of occupation, and the Soviet Union would moreover bring into force the terms of the satellite peace treaties.

These call for the military evacuation also of Hungary and Romania. I heard on good authority that M. Vishinsky told the Austrians last year that as long as there was danger of a general war, the Red army would not leave Austria.

On the other hand, having decided to stay, the Soviet Union has gone a long way towards making its presence unobtrusive to the Austrian population.

CURTAIN REMOVED

The Soviet zone of Austria is about half of the country. But, unlike Germany, there is no partition of Austria. And since last April the Iron Curtain has been all but removed in one installment after another.

Austria has one government for the whole country based on a coalition of its two great parties—both of them firmly anti-Communist and both of them Western in their interests and their outlook. The elections are free everywhere, and as a matter of fact, the Communists who are a small and unimportant party everywhere in Austria, have no more strength, perhaps less, in the Soviet zone than elsewhere.

The Soviets seem to be doing what they can to remove the practical inconveniences of the occupation: to give the population a feeling of not being occupied despite the fact that the Red army remains. Their one important remaining control of Austrian internal affairs is that they retain a certain control over the personnel of the Austrian police in their zone.

UNOBTUSIVE BUT THERE

Though their presence is so unobtrusive, it is of course always a danger which responsible Austrians never put out of mind. For, given other circumstances, the Red army might be able to engineer a coup for the seizure of power. Moreover, the presence of any foreign army so long after a war is an indignity. Nevertheless, there is little doubt that the Soviet Union does not now think of Austria, as probably it did in 1945, as one of the states that might be won in the cold war. Its present conduct recognizes that Austria will not become a Soviet satellite and that it is overwhelmingly and firmly associated with the Western world.

A man who should know told me that half the families in Vienna have relatives living in Yugoslavia or in countries behind the Iron Curtain. It is obvious, then, that in order to maintain the Iron Curtain around Czechoslovakia and Hungary, the Red army must stay in Austria watching the frontiers with these two satellite countries. If the frontiers were open on the Austrian side to easy passage, the satellite structure would be seriously weakened.

STATUS QUO

Soviet policy in Austria seems to me to add considerable support to the view that the basic policy in Europe at present is to preserve the status quo. It would be weakened by the evacuation of Austria and it might well be demolished by the unification of Germany. For that reason the Soviet government is now unwilling even to discuss German unification and it will not sign an Austrian treaty.

Re-reading the Soviet note after visiting Vienna, I am inclined to think that the critical passage in it is the sentence which follows upon the complaint about American military bases in "a number of states of Europe, North Africa, the Near and Middle East." The critical sentence says that "the settlement of the German problem... is inseparably connected with the elimination of the above mentioned military bases."

MILITARY STALEMATE

The European military situation may be described as an enormous Russian salient pushed out 500 miles from the borders of the Soviet Union into the centre of the continent. This Red salient is outflanked by the sea and air forces of NATO in the Eastern Mediterranean, the Balkans and Turkey on the South, and on its northern flank from Britain and Scandinavia.

The situation is a military deadlock. That is why there is a mounting tendency on both sides to avoid serious and radical attempts to end the partition of Germany and Europe, instead to take measures which will make it possible to live with the problems for which no one now sees a solution.

Look Out for Those Radicals

Prior to President Eisenhower's Ottawa visit, T.R.B. in the New Republic, delivered the following ironical warning:

WE hope our man Eisenhower is good and careful on his trip to Canada. He will be in terrible danger.

Radicalism is rampant north of the border. Eisenhower, who links the TVA with "creeping socialism," should be on guard. Canada runs its own coast-to-coast railway, its own broadcasting service, its international shipping system, uranium and synthetic rubber industries, power lines and many similar ventures.

Worse than this, Canada attempts to hide its left-wing character by balancing its budget and having a dollar at a premium to the U.S. dollar.

This column is preparing to launch shortly a new organization, "The U.S. Committee to Save Canada From Creeping (or Crawling) Socialism." We shall use force if necessary. For how can General Motors feel safe with practices like these just over the border?

Every right-thinking American knows that the only thing saving liberty in the U.S.A. is the 22nd Amendment, limiting a potential dictator to two terms in the White House. But the reckless Canadians let Mackenzie King serve some 20 years and even now speak respectfully of him. Canada saps self-reliance with old-age pensions, baby-bonus laws and similar national legislation uncomfortable even to contemplate. Every U.S. child knows that freedom would fall if Executive weren't separated from Legislature under a system that guarantees mutual antagonism.

The audacious Canadians don't have such a system. What's more they have been cutting taxes.

Students at the University of Toronto burned McCarthy in effigy last week. His horror at this act transcends description. It indicates persistence in Canada of a deplorable student interest in public affairs long since ejected from American schools.

Once there were discussion groups in colleges below the border, too, but what graduate who hopes for a government job today wants to have on his record participation in such activities? Our high-spirited, red-blooded youth vents its robust feelings in "panty raids" on the coed dormitories, and the nation sleeps safe.

Canada's Place in the World

IN AN analysis of Canada's foreign policy and this country's future in respect to world affairs, Prof. Donald Grant Creighton of the University of Toronto delivered a paper at the Canada's Tomorrow conference here that was among the most controversial heard during the meetings of representative Canadians.

The picture he presented of world affairs for the next half century was pessimistic. He concluded that this country's task, once it had built up its defenses and proved it was ready to resist attack in concert with other free western nations, was to accept the unquestionable fact that Communism was now the established system in a large part of Asia. Canada must work toward the building of an international order in which the free nations and Communist countries could live side by side in peace.

Prof. Creighton analyzed Canada's foreign policy—or lack of it—in the period between the wars and examined the pulls and pressures that had shaped that policy. Looking to the future Prof. Creighton forecast that France, like Italy, might fail to hold its place in the ranks of the great powers.

But Great Britain, he predicted, will maintain the influential position which she has enjoyed in the postwar world, and Germany, either in its own right or as part of some West-European political or military organization, will for better or worse, recover fairly rapidly at least a part of that country's past authority.

In Asia three nations, China, India, Japan, may reach or regain the stature of great powers. These half-dozen Asian and European states existed on a plane distinctly inferior to that of the towering super powers, the United States and the USSR. But within their own sphere they might exercise a secondary leadership of great importance.

It is to their company that Canada might aspire, the historian said, Canada is not yet of their stature. But in 50 years (the period covered by the papers presented to the conference) Canada might not be far from that stature.

FROM BAK NINH, INDO-CHINA

Where the Legion Marches

THE command post here at Bak Ninh is a fortified monastery perched, like a medieval castle, on a lonely grassy hill where one surveys a dreaming green-blue-golden landscape of rice fields, tree-embowered villages and distant, menacing mountains.

Yet it does not take too long to learn the romantic surface of the fortress of Bak Ninh conceals a thoroughly businesslike point. I got some inkling of the point last night, when I got back from a raid into Viet Minh territory in a neighboring sector.

In the governor's office, on a rather grimy map on the wall, one saw the real meaning of the Bak Ninh fortress.

Its power protected the people of the marshes from the regular forces of the Viet Minh across the border. The unending operations, day and night, from the fortress itself and its sub-sectors, wore down the strength of the Viet Minh within the province.

With this support, Governor Tien doggedly, continuously increased the strength of his militia. And with the peasants fighting for their own rice fields, and the fortress aiding the peasants, nearly half the province of Bak Ninh had been won back from the enemy in the past 18 months. At the beginning, there was only the fortress. By now, there was a wide area where the Communist writ no longer ran.

This is the kind of thing one does not easily see from Washington, where the great intellects of the Pentagon say that the French army here is "too much locked up in fortresses."

One would like to write at length about the extraordinary variety of human types that can be observed in a few days of operations with this army. There was Col. De Castries, with 19 battlefield citations, and God knows how many horse show prizes, "the only colonel commanding a division," who directed the climax of the Mouette Operation as he might have taken one of his jumpers through the final round of the Madison Square Garden show.

Power might become multiple again and this would encourage the rise of new states to eminence. Power at present was dual—the prerogative of the U.S. and Russia. This duality was prolonged and strengthened by the fact of the cold war.

Westerners should realize that every revolutionary philosophy was aggressive, particularly in the first difficult years or decades which preceded and followed its establishment. The question confronting the west was whether the new revolutionary movement, Communism, would continue to spread in Asia by means of characteristic, aggressive revolutionary tactics. The future was terribly uncertain, said Prof. Creighton.

The great hope of the western world, in his view, lay in the little group of successor states, and particularly in the greatest of them, the Indian Union, which emerged from the voluntary liquidation of the British Empire.

India occupied a position in the Asian world which was, in some respects, curiously analogous to the place Canada had managed to keep in the Americas. Canada resisted the tide of republicanism which swept North and South America; Canada maintained vital and sympathetic links with Europe, India, similarly had so far resisted Communism and had kept her contacts with the western free world.

The west had gotten off to a very bad start in its approach to the Communist revolution in Asia, said Prof. Creighton. That revolution was the great new fact of the modern world. Upon it international politics would probably turn for the next half century at least.

Insofar as the cold war had prompted European and American countries to strengthen their defense and to prove, as in the case of Korea, that they would resist aggression to the uttermost, the tensions of the last six years had been beneficial.

But at the same time, it had been, in part prejudicial for it had helped to create a mood of hysterical dogmatism; it had encouraged large groups of westerners to identify Communism with moral evil and to dream of a great holy crusade for the "liberation" of the peoples of Communist controlled countries, Prof. Creighton declared.

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Joseph

Or there was the priest of the group mobile that took Phu Nho Quan, a military Don Camillo, who seemed to spend almost all his waking hours at the front but was also the best mess officer a front line unit ever had. When I asked him how on earth he served an excellent salad in the middle of a battle, he rolled his eyes upward and replied piously, "Ah mon fils, the lettuce falls from the sky, like the paratroopers, you know."

Or there was the rather fragile looking French officer last seen in the depths of the Pentagon, whom I found helping to repair a vital bridge that had been broken by a Viet Minh frogman. He looked more fragile than ever, for he had been faithfully practicing Col. De Bru's rule about night operations.

The day before, moreover he had sent a detachment to demine his post's tiny landing strip for liaison planes. One of the engineers had put his foot through what appeared to be the surface of the earth. The best part of a Viet Minh battalion had instantly emerged from the camouflaged holes where they had been hiding for a surprise attack and there had been "a nice little fight."

"What heaven," he remarked amiably, "to be here, instead of in that unhealthy Pentagon air conditioning."

But one might go on like that about individuals forever. The diversity of human flavors is perhaps less important than the points of resemblance among all the many scores of French soldiers I have met. In this war in which every unit is almost continuously surrounded by the enemy.

I have not met a single one who seemed to want anything better than a good chance to bring down a few Viet. There are no complaints. There is endless unquestioning courage of an almost too dashing brand, for almost all the officers insist upon going into battle wearing their colored, beribboned regimental berets and carrying canes—which makes them nice targets for an enemy who prefers picking off officers. Above all, there is the tough, resilient, resourceful professionalism of a real military elite.

Reward Offered For Costly Ring

A valuable ring lost here by a Portland tourist in September is being sought by the owner, police reported this afternoon.

Exact valuation is not known, but the ring is described as made of platinum, set with one large diamond and numerous smaller diamonds and sapphires.

The owner, Aubrey White, 2116 NE 25th Street, Portland, 12 has told city police that he will pay a liberal reward for its recovery.

2 Freighters Sink in Fog

British and French Ships Founder in Mist, Russian Vessel Aground

PARIS (Reuters)—Thick fog brought disaster early today to two freighters, one British and the other French, and forced a Soviet vessel to run aground.

The 7,200-ton French freighter Equator broke up after running aground near Calais. Her crew was removed safely. The Equator was on her way from the Gulf of Mexico to Le Havre with a cargo of cotton and gasoline.

The 519-ton British ship Mars, worth sank following a collision with the Larrievet, a 3,700-ton French ship. Three crew members were landed at Great Yarmouth. The others are believed to be safely aboard the Larrievet.

The Soviet vessel Kama, 1,921 tons, was detained in Flushing, Holland, after running aground in the Scheldt estuary. Port authorities said she could not sail until her owners, the Soviet government, deposited $22,400 to cover alleged damage to a dike.

Yugoslav Charges Murder Planned By British Agents

KLAGENFURT, Austria (CP)—A 29-year-old Yugoslav has claimed he acted under British secret service orders in the murder of Mrs. Simone de Ridder of Belgium on the Vienna-Ostend express 10 days ago, police said today.

The police statement said the Yugoslav, Stefan Matusec, "confessed to the broad outlines" of the killing, but laid the main blame on an unnamed accomplice. He is demanding to be taken to British intelligence officers on whose "secret instructions" he acted, the statement said.

Mrs. de Ridder, 51, was the mother of Olympic skating star Michelle Lannoy. She was pushed off the express near Kitzingen, Bavaria.

8 U.K. Firms Make Joint Bid On Seaway

$5.6 Million Seen In Orders for All

LONDON (CP)—Eight of Britain's biggest contracting and engineering firms have joined forces to bid on the St. Lawrence seaway project, it was learned today.

Sir Albert Braithwaite, Conservative member of Parliament and chairman of a British organization known as the Seaway Group, said he expects the combine to get £2,000,000 worth of orders.

He added: "This is our last chance to invest in Canada. We missed the Alberta oil and the Labrador ore fields."

"Canada is our best prospect for engineering exports and the seaway should take £2,000,000 off our bread bill, due to lower freight charges on the wheat we buy from Canada."

The firms in the new group are Richard Costain, Dorman Long, Peter Lind, John Howard, Sir Lindsay Parkinson, Taylor Woodrow, Matthew Hall and Cuffin & Company.

Delegation to Ask Sayward Road Work

CAMPBELL RIVER—A delegation will arrive in Victoria Saturday to ask Public Works Minister P. A. Gagliardi to take action regarding repairs to the Sayward Road.

School trustee H. E. Stafford said this week a trip over the 31-mile road took him two hours and 15 minutes.

Public works department has a road maintainer at work, he said, but "it is as good as scrap" on the surface with a dinner fork.

"Culverts are filled with sand and fail to carry any water," he said.

BRITONS FACE MEAT SHORTAGE THIS WINTER

LONDON (CP)—The government told Britons Wednesday that they are to get less meat, effective Sunday, until next summer.

Food Minister Gwilym Lloyd-George told the House of Commons the seasonal peak of home meat production is over and each person will be rationed until further notice to two shillings and twopence (about 30 cents) worth of meat a week—or about one pound in weight.

Food officials said the meat cut will not be noticed at Christmas. Near-record stocks of turkey and poultry, bacon and ham have been accumulated.

Meat virtually has been off ration since June. Meat supplies have been so good housewives have been able to get as much as they can afford.

Paper Founded to Support Laurier Party Will Fold

MONTREAL (CP)—Le Canada, Montreal newspaper founded 50 years ago to support the Liberal party of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, today announces it is ceasing publication.

The French-language daily, established April 4, 1903, made the announcement with the front-page headline: "Le Canada suspends publication."

An editorial-page statement which thanked readers and collaborators for their support during the newspaper's half-century career, blamed changing times and increasing costs for its cessation.

The announcement came after rumors that Le Canada was for sale persisted more than a month.

A year ago, Le Canada altered its format from standard eight-column to five-column tabloid size. A statement at that time by the publishers said the change was designed to attract new readers.

Today's announcement says that when Le Canada first appeared, morning papers were "the most listened to and their

Police Officer Mobbed By Scots After Nationalists Sent to Jail

EDINBURGH (Reuters)—A crowd of 500 Wednesday mobbed a police reservist whose evidence helped convict four young Nationalists on a charge of illegally possessing explosives. The crowd shouted "Iscairiot."

Earlier, a Scottish jury found the four men innocent of conspiring against the government, but guilty of possessing dynamite. The four—Robert Duncan Watt, 22; Malcolm MacAllister, 24; Owen Gillan, 27, and Raymond Forbes, 23—were each sentenced to one year in jail.

Cullen, principal state witness, claimed to have won the confidence of the quartet and pretended to share in a plot to blow up Saint Andrew's House, government headquarters in Scotland.

The four men claimed they knew all along that Cullen was a police agent and led him on in an effort to expose "Gestapo-like" police methods of curbing Scottish nationalism.

How to Help Your Sore, Painful Piles

If you are discouraged about getting rid of the itching soreness and burning pain of your piles a grand surprise awaits you when you try Hem-Roid, an internal pile treatment.

Get a package of Hem-Roid at any drug store and use as directed. You will be cleaned at how quickly your pile trouble is relieved. Only $1.50 for the big 60 tablet package. If you are not 100% pleased after using Hem-Roid 2 or 3 days as a test, ask for your money back. Refund agreement by all drug stores.

The statement recalled Sir Wilfrid Laurier was in power when Godfrey Langlois started Le Canada.

It recalled among its editors such eminent Quebec editors as Fernand Rinfret, Olivier Asselin, Edmond Turcotte and Guy Jamin.

Report from your partner in helping Canada grow

EVERY year since the founding of The Bank of Nova Scotia, in 1832, the publication of the Bank's Annual Statement has provided more than a financial picture of the growth of the Bank. It has reflected the growth of Canada. This year again, the facts behind the figures of the balance sheet offer new proof that The Bank of Nova Scotia is your partner in helping Canada grow.

Thousands of Canadians in all walks of life call upon The Bank of Nova Scotia to help with their personal and business affairs. Daily they use the Bank's services to save money, buy money orders, safeguard their valuables, obtain foreign exchange, transfer funds, buy travellers' cheques.

Every day the Bank makes funds available to business... municipalities... farmers and fishermen, lumbermen... manufacturers... for the hundred and one operations that go into making Canada the giant of the North.

The money which hundreds of thousands of Canadians save at The Bank of Nova Scotia goes to work in the form of investments and loans. Much of it goes to help build highways, hospitals, airports, welfare centres and schools; for hydro-electric schemes, scientific research and the development of natural resources. It also helps private industry and commerce to expand—leading to more employment and a higher standard of living.

Then there are the thousands of "little" enterprises that are the backbone of Canada's economy. Loans to all these mean increased production and prosperity. In this way savings become an investment in your own country and work to help Canada grow.

Private TV Has Backer

MP Urges CBC Given Competition

OTTAWA (CP)—A request that private television stations be allowed to compete against the CBC in Canada's major cities has been made in the Commons.

William Hamilton (PC—Montreal-Notre Dame de Grace) said Wednesday the government-owned CBC should release its "stranglehold" on television in six big cities.

Making his first Commons address in the throne speech debate, he said private TV stations should be allowed in Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa, where the CBC has stations, and in Vancouver, Winnipeg and Halifax, where CBC plans TV outlets.

However, there was apparently "not one iota of hope for private enterprise in this field in our major cities."

Private television stations have been authorized in 14 Canadian cities. These are at Sudbury, Ont., the only one in operation as yet, and at Calgary, Edmonton, Regina and Saskatoon in the west; Windsor, Hamilton, London, Kingston and Kitchener in Ontario; Quebec City, Rimouski, Que., Saint John, N.B., and Sydney, N.S.

OPERATING PROFIT

Mr. Hamilton said the last CBC annual report showed a net operating surplus of $375,000.

However, it received $11,975,000 from the government in license fees and statutory grant. This money was paid "for performing a service which, under a government less socialistically inclined than the present one, private enterprise would perform for nothing."

In other words, he said, the CBC had a net loss of more than $11,500,000, "all of which was picked up by the taxpayers of this country."

The throne speech debate was overshadowed by a statement made by External Affairs Minister Pearson at the start of the half-day session.

Mr. Pearson said the government is willing to arrange a secret meeting between Igor Gouzenko and "any person" designated by the United States government. The U.S. Senate Internal security sub-committee wants to question the former Soviet embassy code clerk whose disclosures in 1946 broke up a Russian spy ring in Canada.

The minister tabled an exchange of notes between Canada and the United States. He said such a meeting, if Gouzenko agrees to attend, must be held in Canada. But he made it clear the government thinks no new information would be brought out.

In the Senate, an investigation of a national health insurance plan was urged by Senator F. W. Gershaw (L-Alberta).

MAINLAND MAN GETS 3 YEARS

VANCOUVER (CP)—John Frederick Dillon, 25, who made the mistake of hiding narcotics in a police station washroom, has been sentenced to three years in the penitentiary for drug possession.

He was captured three weeks ago when he walked into a police trap laid in the washroom after the store of drugs had been discovered by officers. His arrest came just 20 minutes after he had been released from prison on bail on a previous drug possession charge.

Dillon was committed for trial in a higher court on the other charge when he pleaded not guilty.

Fred Rose Reported In Red Czechoslovakia

MONTREAL (CP)—The Gazette said Wednesday in a front-page story—that Fred Rose, one-time member of the House of Commons and member of a Russian spy ring exposed by Igor Gouzenko, has gone behind the Iron Curtain and is living in Czechoslovakia.

The story, written by G. J. Fitzgerald, says Rose, released from penitentiary here in August, 1951, after serving a six-year sentence for espionage, left Montreal by sea in mid-October, travelling under a Canadian passport and giving health as the reason for the trip.

The paper says its information has been confirmed through local sources and "an unimpeachable Ottawa authority."

COURTENAY — Requests of school janitors in School District 71 for a wage increase and other benefits were turned down by the school board this week.

The employees had sought holiday pay for part-time workers and 60 days' sick leave after five years, which trustees considered not justified.

Russian Migs Alert UN Forces on Paengyong

SEOUL (AP)—A highly-reliable Allied source said tonight that enemy aircraft have caused frequent night alerts at an Allied airfield on Paengyong Island, off the west coast of South Korea.

The information came from a man who had been stationed on the island. He identified the aircraft as Russian-built Mig jets.

He said the Mig's had been sweeping near the United Nations island and "have been causing frequent night alerts."

Never during the Korean War was it confirmed that Mig's—the sleek, swift opponents of Allied Sabre jets—had ventured south of the 38th parallel.

Saanich Patrol Slows Speeders

Increased traffic patrols in Saanich are slowing the tendency of some drivers to use through roads as speedways.

Deputy Police Chief Bert Pearson said Wednesday that increased watchfulness by a new patrol is paying off in safer driving.

"Most drivers are keeping under the 30-mile-an-hour mark now," he said. Three men recently added to the Saanich force, bringing the strength to 18, have made it possible to divert more patrols to dangerous intersections in the municipality.

During quiet hours full attention of the patrols will be concentrated for speeders and drivers who have been drinking.

The first day of the increased vigilance, only three drivers were ticketed.

McCarthy Raises Ire Of White House Aides

Eisenhower's Staff Charges Senator Lodged Attack on President During Radio Address

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times says today that top White House staff members are "hopping mad" about Senator Joseph McCarthy's television-radio speech.

A Washington dispatch says the staff members would not comment officially, but unofficially they made these points about the Wisconsin Republican's speech delivered Tuesday night:

1. He received time on the air to criticize former president Truman and ended up by criticizing President Eisenhower as well.

2. He sought to make himself, rather than President Eisenhower's legislative program, the central issue in the 1954 congressional campaign.

3. He demonstrated more clearly than ever before that he is not prepared to follow the president's lead either in fighting the Communists at home or in the strategy against them in Communist China.

The story said one White House aide described the speech as "a declaration of war against the president," and it added: "Others put their criticism more mildly, but there seemed to be general agreement that the speech marked one more crisis in the stormy relations between the White House and the junior Republican senator from Wisconsin."

LAST-MINUTE CCF CANDIDATES FILE PAPERS

VANCOUVER (CP)—Six last-minute CCF candidates filed nomination papers at deadline Wednesday, bringing to 29 the number contesting Vancouver's Dec. 9 elections. Thirteen will seek four council seats, eight for three park boards seats and eight for four school board vacancies.

Property owners will vote on a $19,600,000 school referendum, a $26,200,000 five-year civic plan and a $2,750,000 auditorium by-law.

Bath Chair For Cripples Lifts, Dunks It's Passenger

By DON INGHAM

The luxury of a hot bath, without the difficulties of getting in and out of a tub, will be made available to crippled and disabled persons through the invention of a Victoria man.

J. Henry Michaud, 642 Johnson Street, has designed a simple little doodad that will permit persons to be lifted from a wheel chair, lowered into the tub, and lifted out with a minimum of trouble.

"It's possible for the invalid to use it himself," he said.

The device consists of a metal bar, to be suspended from a ceiling over the bath tub. It supports a small wheeled carriage to which a set of small chain blocks are attached. A metal seat is hung from the chain blocks.

In practice, the detachable seat would be placed in a wheel chair for the patient. It would then be attached to chains and lifted by the chain blocks. Seat and all would go into the tub.

"Usually two orderlies are required to get an afflicted person in and out of a tub," the inventor said. "With this device he can do it himself."

A company has been formed to market the lift, which will be manufactured by Hafer Machine Co. Ltd., 1720 Store Street. Patent rights have been applied for.

Mr. Michaud said representatives of both city hospitals have shown interest in the invention, and that some orders have been received.

A pilot model has been constructed and production will start shortly.

Labor Blockade Planned for B.C.

IWA President Says Plan to Extend From Province Across Prairies to Manitoba

VANCOUVER (CP)—Plans for a complete labor blockade of the strike-ridden British Columbia interior are being drafted by the International Woodworkers of America (CIO-CCL).

George Morris, IWA district president, announced the plan Wednesday and said it would extend from B.C., where some 9,000 men are out of work, across the prairies to Manitoba.

Claiming that the IWA is faced with an "employers' threat to destroy our union throughout the interior lumber industry," Mr. Morris said the union would fight to prevent employers from displacing them with strikebreakers.

"We have set plans in motion that will impose a complete labor blockade on the strike-bound area of the interior," he said. In Alberta and Saskatchewan, as well as B.C., at every point where workers may be hired and entrained, they will be advised that the interior lumber industry is on strike.

PROMISED SUPPORT

Mr. Morris said the IWA had been promised support of the Alberta and Saskatchewan Federations of Labor in the strike touched off two months ago by demands for a pay boost of 18 cents an hour to the level of coast woodworkers. Present interior basic wage rate is $1.29.

About 3,000 IWA members are involved in the walkout that has forced another 8,000 workers in associated industry out of work.

Meanwhile, the B.C. government continued efforts to seek a solution to the walkout. Mr. Morris and other IWA officials met with Premier Bennett and operator representatives in Victoria Wednesday.

No details of the closed meeting were disclosed except a bare announcement that Mr. Bennett had asked for and received information from each side. Another meeting is scheduled next Wednesday.

YELLOWKNIFE VOTE RECOUNT ORDERED

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP)—A recount of votes for the first fully-elected municipal council of this gold-mining town has been ordered for December 3.

Magistrate L. H. Phinney ordered the recount on the application of Charles Crate, secretary of the Yellowknife local of the Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

Crate was credited with seven votes fewer than the last councillor elected in the voting November 16 at this town of some 3,000 population 600 miles north of Edmonton.

The former trustee board included three members appointed by the federal government plus members elected by residents.

The mayor, J. G. McNiven, elected by acclamation, and eight councillors were scheduled to take office January 1.

Interior IWA Strike Parley Shows Promise, Says Premier

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Wednesday talks between government authorities and labor-management in the interior woodworkers' strike "show promise."

"Anytime we can get both sides around the table it is promising," the premier said.

The premier, Labor Minister Lyle Wicks and Attorney-General Robert Bonner had just finished a two-hour conference with representatives of the 6,500 striking lumbermen and northern and southern interior operators.

The northern operators earlier had threatened to boycott the conference.

Premier Bennett said he was "pleased with the atmosphere" of the talks.

The meeting was adjourned until next Wednesday when both factions will provide the government with further information.

The premier had nothing to say about a threat of IWA dis-

Blues Upset Bruins

Rally to Score Two-Goal Win

New York 5, Boston 3
Somebody must have told New York Rangers the fable about the hare and the tortoise.

Frank Boucher's fifth-placers have broken the hearts of the New York faithful time and again this season by scooting into an early lead in their National Hockey League games, only to run out of gas in the last period and yield victory to their opponents.

Wednesday night they reversed the procedure. Boston Bruins scored the first goal, led 3-2 at the end of two periods and finished on the short end of a 5-3 count at the final bell. The Rangers' five-goal total equaled their season's high and the eight goals scored by both clubs also tied the top mark since the opening of the low-scoring season. Not since the Rangers beat Chicago Black Hawks 5-3 October 11 has the red light flashed as frequently. It was an important victory for the New Yorkers. The fourth-place Bruins still lead them by five points but the two clubs play again at Boston tonight and another Ranger win could put them well within striking distance of the last play-off spot.

In other games Friday night Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings will try to break their second-place tie at Detroit while the front-running Montreal Canadiens take on the last-place Hawks at Chicago.

The Bruins, unsuccessful in their last New York visit when they lost 4-3, took the offensive from the start.

Joe Klukay finally gave them the lead shortly after the half-way mark of the opening period, only to have Eddie Kullen tie the score four minutes later.

BRIEF LEAD
Ike Hildebrand, the reformed Peterborough Petes' lacrosse player, gave the Rangers a brief edge 46 seconds after the second frame opened, but within five minutes Boston bounced back with tallies by Milt Schmidt and Leo Labine.

Hildebrand's second goal squared matters at 3-3 in the third period. Barely a minute later, with the Bruins' Jerry Toppazzini off for high-sticking, Wally Hergesheimer put New York in front for keeps.

The last Ranger goal was a gift. With Boston goalie Jim Henry out of the nets in favor of an extra forward, defenseman Harry Howell cleared from behind the New York net. The puck caromed off the side boards and drifted lazily into the empty Bruin cage.

WHERE IS THE WILD AND WOOLLY WEST?

'Peg Bombers Behind Grey Cup 8-Ball

Phil Lee, Times telegraph editor, is a former Winnipegger and an ardent Blue Bomber fan. Last year, Lee picked the east team to win the Grey Cup game. The year before he picked the west team. Here, Lee gives his views on Canada's sports classic and why he is switching to the west this year.

Winnipeg is behind the eight-ball.
On Saturday its western championship football machine, the Blue Bombers, will be more than fighting the eastern champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats for the Grey Cup and the football supremacy of Canada in Toronto Varsity Stadium. It will be fighting to regain a lost reputation as the fightingest club ever to come out of the west.

Already the city of Winnipeg has denied its reputation. By not wholeheartedly backing its team in contributing to pre-game ceremonies that have made Grey Cup day the number one event on the nation's sports calendar, Winnipeg has let the west down badly. The wild-and-wooly

Looks Good . . . But No Try

Bays Blank Vic High to Take Russell Cup Lead

Oak Bay 16, Vic High 0

By ROY THORSEN

A heavier Oak Bay High School fifteen rang up their first victory in the opening of the annual Howard Russell Cup rugby series between the Bays and Victoria High School Wednesday afternoon at Windsor Park.

Coached by Don Oliver, the Oak Bay squad plowed through a stubborn Victoria High School defense for a 16-0 victory in the opener of a best-of-three series for the coveted silverware.

Close to 500 fans, including cheer leaders from both schools, ringed the park to watch the tussle. Teams will meet Monday at Victoria High School in the second game of the series.

The huskier Oak Bay team had the best of play throughout. And most of the action was concentrated in the Vic High half of the field. The Victoria team put up a valiant defense, but could not stop the rampaging Oak Bay goal-getting forays. Oak Bay established a 3-0 lead and hammered their way through the Vic High defense for the bulk of their scoring in the second half.

Colin Creighton, lanky and fast, was the starring player on the Oak Bay team. He sloshed through the mud for two tries.

Dave Edgar, second rank of the Oak Bay scrum, dribbled over the line and fell on the ball for the first score about 20 minutes after play had started. Norm Dixon failed to make the difficult conversion kick. Oak Bay found it tough to break through the Vic High defenses in this half.

CREIGHTON AGAIN

Creighton was in the lime-light in the final period. He picked up a loose-ball and went over. Vic High had attempted a field goal when Creighton intervened. Dixon made the conversion from a difficult angle.

Oak Bay kept up the pressure and finally Dave Unwin snared a loose ball and dived over for another try. Darkness was shrouding the field when Creighton made his second try. Dixon converted.

Oliver fielded a team that was not of usual strength. Backfielder Merlin Hawes was not on hand owing to illness, and Bob Showers was taken off the field early in the game due to an injury.

Line-ups follow:

TOTEMS VS. VIKING
Friday, Victoria High Totems will be looking for their fourth straight victory when they meet Victoria College Vikings in the feature game of a two-game card at the Victoria High gym at 9.

Victoria High Girls clash with Victoria College Girls in the opening game at 7:30.

SCOTS, SERVANTS MEET IN MCGAVIN CUP FINAL

Canadian Scottish and Civil Service soccer clubs are scheduled to battle for the McGavin Cup Saturday.

Scottish and Servants will take the field at RoyalAthletic Park at 2:30 in the final round of the cup series, won last year by Wood Motors (see Adams).

Sunday, Victoria West meet Heaney's at Lower Beacon Hill Park at 2:30 in a Victoria and District Football Association League contest that was postponed last Sunday due to weather conditions.

Scots moved into the cup finals by defeating the defending champion Motormen, 3-2, two weeks ago. They had previously eliminated Heaney's 3-1, in first-round play.

Servants blanked Victoria-West, 3-0, in their opening round and then drew a bye into the final.

For as we have remarked before, Grey Cup day is more than a day for a game. It is "Canada Day" when west meets east on the field of good-natured rivalry and in the bonds of warm understanding and appreciation. All this is much bigger than the game itself although a very part of it.

On the gridiron Saturday the west is underdog against Hamilton's powerful Tiger-Cats, the odds ranging from 6-5 to 2-1. Personally we don't see it this way. At worse it's no better than an even bet.

Granted Hamilton through the line is most impressive. But so are the Bombers. What is more they have tremendous depth, especially at the quarterback slot with such excellent field generals and passers as Jack Jacobs, Joe Zaleski and Geoff Crain.

What is more important the team—especially Jacobs—will be desperately anxious to make up for their disastrous Grey Cup venture three seasons ago when Argos ran over them roughshod in the now famous "mud bowl." This is the reputation they are out to recover.

What is more: The Bombers of 1953 have had better breaks than any other western team that has gone before. First and foremost, they haven't had the long lay-off that western champions of the past have had to undergo while waiting for the east to

Royals Bopped By Edmonton

Edmonton 7, New Westminster 2

New Westminster Royals are finding the opposition a bit too tough to handle on their current swing through the prairie section of the Western Hockey League.

The revamped Edmonton Flyers, mired deep in the league cellar, flashed some of their championship brilliance of last season as they handed the third-place Royals a humiliating 7-2 shellacking in Wednesday night's only scheduled fixture.

The loss came on top of a 4-2 defeat at the hands of Saskatoon Quakers Tuesday night. To make matters worse, Royals close out their road trip tonight against Calgary Stampedeers. The cowboys, firmly entrenched in second place in the standings, boast the highest scoring average in the seven-team loop.

Some 3,300 loyal Edmonton rooters watched wide-eyed as Flyers roared into a 2-0 lead in the first period, split a pair of second period tallies with the Royals and then spurred to their lopsided win.

FIRST SINCE SHUFFLE

It was Flyers' first game since a major-line shuffle which saw the addition of much needed left wing strength.

Ray Hannigan paired the winners with a two-goal effort, while Jim Ullian, Enio Scisizzi, Jimmy Anderson, Marcel Bonin and playing coach Bud Poile added the others. New Westminster marksmen were Gordie Fashaway and Jackie Hamilton.

Oil King Star

Leading Scorer

LETHBRIDGE (CP)—Norm Ullian of Edmonton Oil Kings, one of the brightest professional prospects to come along in years, is holding a 12-point lead over the Western Junior Hockey League scoring race.

The Oil King sophomore, 18 next month, has scored 21 goals and made the plays for 13 others for 34 points and a 12-point lead over Bill Kurtz of Regina Pats.

Ullian, a centre who has averaged three points a game this season, is the league's top goal scorer with 21.

John Bucyk of Edmonton, Ullian's left winger, is the top play-maker with 17 assists.

Scott & Peden Nips Saanichton Hoopers

Bill Dobbie pushed up 10 points as Scott & Peden junior boys defeated Saanichton senior C men, 36-31, in an exhibition basketball game at Oak Bay Junior High School Wednesday night.

The feedmen ran up a 10-point lead going into the final quarter and then held off a bid by Saanichton to gain the victory. The winners were ahead 20-13 at the half and 26-16 at three-quarter time.

Stan Stewart, scoring eight points in the final quarter, paced the losers with 10 points. Tillicum's bantam boys down St. Louis College, 30-12.

Carr Scores to Give Nanaimo Tie; V's Win

V's 6, Navy 4; Merchants 2, Nanaimo 2

By DENNY BOYD

He may have the face of Father Time himself, auburn hair that is turning battleship grey and knee joints that creak like an antique rocking chair, but Nanaimo Clippers' Red Carr, game after game, appears to be just at the bottom of that hill that most veterans are supposed to be over.

The cagey old-timer of the Vancouver Island Commercial League's pace-setting Clippers is in his second childhood, hockey-wise, and a lot of people are suffering as a result.

Wednesday night at Memorial Arena it was Victoria Merchants' turn to suffer. With just 20 seconds left in their game with Clippers, Merchants were heading for a 2-1 victory in an airtight contest. But then the old dodger Carr presented his argument. Result: Merchants 2, Nanaimo 2.

Carr was doing his usual job of hounding loose pucks, checking and setting up plays but still Merchants were in the lead, thanks to stout goal tending by George Hall.

SHAMLOCK HELPS

But then with 20 seconds left playing coach Eddie Shamlock, who must be almost as old as Carr, whipped the puck over to Carr as Merchants were caught with their defenses down.

Carr fired a high, hard one and it was a tie ball game, the split in points preventing Merchants from making an appreciable dent in Clippers' hefty league lead. Victoria Vs who downed Navy, 6-4, in the first game, gained a second-place tie with Merchants.

Clippers had jumped into an early 1-0 lead in the first period when Bert Yesowick set Earl Robinson up with a picture pass that allowed him to split the Merchant defense and beat Hall with a rising shot to the short side.

There were only 20 seconds left in the period when Merchants finally succeeded in breaking the iron-clad armor of Don Medley, playing his first shift of the season in the Nanaimo nets and doing a yeoman job. Ron Bremner beat Medley on a pass from playing coach Bill Jensen.

COULTER SCORES
Cliff Coulter put Merchants ahead at 5:30 of the second period with a blistering shot that went through three Nanaimo players and Medley's pads.

As the two goal tenders locked the doors, Coulter's goal loomed larger and larger. Merchants killing off two second-period penalties with no damage done. But then Carr made his bid and turned it into a grand slam.

In the first game of the night, Jimmy Neilson's Navy club, still looking for its first win of the season, took a 1-0 lead but couldn't hold it and suffered a 6-4 defeat at the hands of Victoria Vs.

Johnny Neve's goal at 5:22 of the first period, scored while his team was a man short, put Navy into their short-lived lead but Bob Coulter tied it and Jackie Milburn put Vs ahead with an unassisted marker at 9:55.

Paul Wannamaker equalized for Navy after a half a minute of the second period but Milburn, Don Plensky, Bob Fowler and Coulter scored four straight for Vs.

Navy made an effort to get back in the game with two third-period goals by Orr Coulter and Ray Johnson, but the task was too big and the time too short.

Dutchmen Gain Top In Ontario Hockey
The Kitchener Waterloo Dutchmen took sole possession of first place in the Ontario Hockey Association senior A league Wednesday night when they tied the Sarnia Sailors 1-1 in Sarnia.

In other games, the last-place Niagara Falls Contractors edged the Stratford Indians 4-3 and the Hamilton Tigers scored two third-period goals to beat the Chatham Maroons 3-1 in Chatham.

Ottawa Senators Name Lester Bell Manager

PHILADELPHIA (BUP)—Lester R. Bell, who managed the Philadelphia Athletics' Savannah, Ga., club in the Sally League last season, will replace Frank Skaff as manager of the International Baseball League Ottawa Senators next season.

The A's announcement Wednesday that Bell would go to the Senators was the second shake-up in the Canadian club's ranks in a week. Last week Frank G. McDonald was named Ottawa's general manager succeeding Elmer Burkhardt.

Bell, whose home is in Harrisburg, Pa., played eight years in the National League as short-stop and third baseman. He started with the Cardinals in 1923, then moved on to the Braves in 1928 and the Cubs in 1930. He took part in the 1926 world series.

He began his managerial career in 1940 with the Harrisburg Senators of the Interstate League. He managed Springfield in the Eastern League in 1942, returned to Harrisburg in 1946 for a six-year stint, went to Lincoln in the Western League in 1952, then transferred to Savannah this year.

Zarzy had an unexpected visitor in hospital recently when Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal, while on a visit to Kingston, dropped in to say hello.

Trafton Clams Up For Fear of Enemy Spies

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

AURORA, Ont. (CP)—George "Thunder" Trafton has 105 football plays. He won't talk about any of them.

The 56-year-old coach of Winnipeg Blue Bombers clams up at mention of defensive or offensive strategy for the Grey Cup final against Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Toronto Saturday.

"What do you think I am?" Trafton roared a few minutes before the Blue Bombers' light drill Wednesday. "I'm not running every two-bit football team in the country. I'm supposed to be calling the shots for Winnipeg."

That's why, the voluble

Trafton added, the Blue Bombers are holding practice sessions in secrecy.

"This is the big time," he said. "I'm running a big-time football club and every Tom, Dick and Harry isn't going to sneak around us."

Trafton made his comments while fingering a couple of little black books with his plays just before the Bombers headed for practice at nearby St. Andrew's College, about 30 miles north of Toronto.

Only a few St. Andrew's students rubber-necked.

"Why should I open up my workbooks?" Trafton asked. "How do I know who's watching? I saw Red Ettinger, centre with Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Union and formerly with Saskatchewan Roughriders at the drills Tuesday.

"How the h— do I know who else was there?"

Trafton said he hadn't heard of coach Carl Voyles of the Tiger-Cats "yackety-yacketing about his plays," and added:

"I'm not going to fix it so Voyles can pick up any newspaper and read in three minutes what I'm going to do in an hour."

Asked whom he might start for the classic, Trafton commented:

"You've seen my line-up before, haven't you? Well, take your choice. I'm not crazy."

Hungarians Give England's Best Stunning International Lesson

LONDON (CP)—England's proudest soccer boast was turned Wednesday at huge Wembley Stadium as a record-smashing team from Hungary trounced the home team 6-3 before 100,000 fans in what had been billed as the match of the century.

The defeat was the first inflicted on England at home by a team from outside the British Isles in the 90-year life of the Football Association. Hungary scored more goals against her than any other team had in 72 years and the total—nine goals—was the most ever produced in sold-out Wembley housing a $140,000 crowd, believed a record for a mid-week game.

In teaching the originators of soccer a thing or two, Hungary was led by lantern-jawed forward Nandor Hidegkuti and captain Ferenc Puskas with two goals each. Jozsef Bozsik, member of parliament, scored the other and one Hungarian tally was credited to back Bill Eckersley of Blackburn Rovers, who put the ball into his own goal.

TOOK EARLY LEAD

England's team, termed before the match as the greatest since 1939, trailed 4-1 after 28 minutes. Their scorers were forwards Jackie Sewell of Sheffield Wednesday, Stan Mortenson of Blackpool and back Alf Ramsey of Tottenham. Ramsey scored in the second half from a penalty kick.

The English style of long passing, hard-charging soccer came loose at the seams under the Hungarian finesse and their goal was repeatedly under pressure throughout.

Hungary's victory was the second in three meetings with England since 1934 and stamped them as overwhelming favorites to win the World Soccer Cup at Switzerland next summer. It was the 27th straight international play for the state-sponsored team, which was unveiled in world-competition two years ago by the Communist government.

UNHAPPY WIND-UP

The game was an unhappy sports wind-up, both for a Coronation year, where English cricket and track showed new life, and the Football Association's 90th birthday celebrations. But there was no trace of bitterness among the vast crowd, which cheered the Hungarians.

The sixth officials' specific job will be to rule on long passes and punts. Normally, the two umpires drop back to cover the territory; but to do so, must relax vigilance along the line.

Norm Perry, president of the Canadian Rugby Union, said Wednesday night in addition to the referee, two umpires, the judge of play and head linesman, another official will be stationed deep in defensive territory.

The six officials' specific job will be to rule on long passes and punts. Normally, the two umpires drop back to cover the territory; but to do so, must relax vigilance along the line.

George McCredie supplied the winners margin with a second-half penalty kick.

FANS BRAVE WEATHER FOR GREY CUP DUCATS

HAMILTON, Ont. (RUP)—A 63-year-old retired fireman bought Hamilton's first Grey Cup ticket today after an all-night wait with 2,000 other fans in freezing weather.

J. R. Holder had been in the lineup since 9 a.m. yesterday, 24 hours before the Hamilton club put its 4,000 tickets on sale.

"If Brooklyn can do this for the Dodgers, Hamilton can do it for the Tiger-Cats," he said.

Snowflurries lashed at the waiting fans during the night but police said not one gave up and went home.

Multi-Million Dollar Race Track Proposed

LOS ANGELES (UP)—The newly incorporated Palm Springs Turf Club today sought permission from the California Horse Racing Board to build a $3,000,000 race track near the desert resort town.

The club filed an application yesterday requesting 18 racing days in November and December of 1955 prior to the opening of Santa Anita, with four of the dates to be given to charity.

Turf Club President Kenneth B. Kirk said the group has asked the board to hold a hearing on the application in Palm Springs in December or January, 1954.

The club was incorporated Tuesday in articles filed by the Palm Springs Jockey Club.

Among those named to the 15-member board of directors were Robert S. Howard, son of the late turfman Charles S. Howard, owner of Seabiscuit, and motion picture director Clarence Brown.

Kirk said plans call for the track to be built just outside the Palm Springs city limits with a grandstand and clubhouse to accommodate a peak crowd of 20,000. He said over $1,000,000 has been subscribed to the track, but that no construction will begin until action is taken by the horse racing board.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT Chavez, who came into the ring weighing 137 pounds—a half pound more than his foe—won in a walk. After a dull first four rounds the little Mexican star connected with the right to the jaw in the fifth round to floor his rangy opponent who got up before there was any count. That one blow seemed to take all the steam out of King. He never landed a damaging blow after that.

The only time King hurt me was when he connected with a left hook to the body in the fourth round," said Chavez after the bout. "After that it was easy going."

King wasn't too high in his opinion of Chavez.

"He is just a fair fighter," said the Canadian. "I didn't feel tight. I would like to fight him again."

Chavez staggered King with a right to the head in the second round and twice more after the knockdown in the fifth.

King was fairly even with Chavez through the first four rounds, but after that he appeared listless. As he said after the bout, "I was worried."

DENNY MCGEE MEMORIAL PRESENTED FOR MINORS

The Denny McGee Memorial Trophy will be up for competition in the Lower Island Junior Football Association junior division city knockout series.

Donated by Mrs. A. McGee in memory of her late son, the former Victoria United soccer star who died in an accident at Cowichan Bay earlier this year, the trophy was accepted at a meeting Monday night attended by the United Booster Club, L.I.J.F.A. and Mrs. McGee. It will be presented to the association next spring.

Aussies Preparing For Olympic Games

MELBOURNE (AP)—Now that all the disputes have been settled, the organizing committee for the 1956 Olympic Games in Melbourne is aiming to have all stadia completed about a year before the big sports meet is due to start.

Work on the reconstruction of the Melbourne Cricket Ground stadium, scene of the opening and closing ceremonies as well as the track and field events, is to start immediately after the Queen's visit in March.

Work on the Olympic swimming pool has been contracted to be finished by the end of 1955.

The site of the swimming and diving pools and the financing and construction of housing for the athletes were two thorny problems. At one time the disputes, with political factions involved, became so heated that the International Olympic Committee considered shifting the 19

Auctions Move 70 Cars Here

Faced with a lot bulging with used cars, and new Mercuries, Meteors and Lincolns looming on the horizon, Harry Gladwell of Gladwell Motors Ltd. decided a few weeks ago that some kind of action was needed — preferably drastic.

The result was two used car auctions that moved 70 cars in two days.

"And not a trade-in taken for the lot," he said in an interview this week.

He admitted that the firm didn't make any money on the auction, in fact was the loser.

"But," he said, "those are 70 cars that we do not have to wash and polish every day. We don't have to fill them with gas every day, or keep their batteries from fading out. We don't have to put anti-freeze in them."

"We're in an excellent position," said Walter J. Mosedale, general manager of the firm.

"With new cars to sell, we will be able to give some pretty good terms," he said. "In addition, the auctions tend to stabilize used car prices. We know now what price the public will pay for a car, and it's the buyer who sets the price."

He said, though, that some dealers at the auction, who were keeping an "ear" on what was going on, were badly shocked by the prices for which certain cars were sold.

Mr. Gladwell, president of the firm, said that more than 70 cars actually were sold through the auction sales Nov. 14 and 21.

More than 3,500 persons turned up at the first auction to hear auctioneer Keith Armstrong of Vancouver sell 48 low-priced cars of prewar vintage.

"A good many of the sales were to people that already had one car in the family and wanted a small car for errands and so forth," Mr. Mosedale said.

Intake System Vital To High Performance

Installation 12.

The size of an engine is called its displacement, and means the number of cubic inches of mixture it will "inhale" in one complete cycle of two revolutions that will see each cylinder filled once.

In reading advertisements we see claims that the Blank Car Company has produced an outstanding marvel of power production that delivers 110 horsepower.

A check shows its displacement is 240 cubic inches. This is nothing wonderful, since a racing Norton motorcycle engine of 30 cubic inches develops more than 50 horsepower, and eight of them, with a total displacement of 240 cubic inches, would produce 400 horsepower and not 110.

A 270-cubic-inch Offenhauser racing car engine delivers 350 horsepower, but no standard car engine of average price produces more than moderate power. Far more effort to produce power is made in the little cars, since a small engine pulling a small but fairly solid car really has to get in and dig.

Noise Deadened

There are several ways to get good performance and avoid noise.

In an L-head motor the valve operating mechanism consists merely of a cam rider. With a light valve the rider also is light. Therefore a powerful spring is not required, and the motor will run quietly.

In addition, the valve assembly is fairly well insulated for sound by being well inside the engine behind cover plates. Unfortunately, the large heat-dissipating areas exposed to the combustion, and the comparatively small valves, limit horsepower.

The overhead valve engines, which used to be so noisy they were called "jingle jobs," now use a cam shaft with a gentle action and rely on the good shape of the combustion chamber and large valves to make up for the camshaft's gentle curves.

They still have a lot of parts to move, such as the cam rider, push rod, rocker arm, and valve, so that if high performance is wanted, strong valve springs again must come into use.

Double Cam Costly

The "last word" is the double overhead cam, although it is very expensive to make. A complete housing is built up the front of the engine to the head to carry the camshaft drive. Two separate camshafts with gears and bearings are mounted in housings on top of the cylinder head.

As moving the camshaft to the head enables very large valves to be operated directly in an efficient combustion chamber—shaped like half a grapefruit with the juicy side down—this type, to date, is the ultimate in power output, and expense.

"DOs" are used on Lagonda, Jaguar 120 and Mark VII, Ferrari, most racing motorcycles, Offenhauser 250, 270, and midgits, and others.

An ingenious compromise is made on some engines, such as Riley, Lea & Francis, and the new V-8 overhead valve jobs, by using a camshaft in the crankcase but placed high to permit short push rods. With the use of good materials, results can be almost equivalent to those of the double overhead camshaft.

It is a far cry from the valve operating rigging on the old "Wee McGregor" drag saw to the modern racing cam where every degree of its movement has a purpose.

If you own one of the popular big three makes of car your intake cam opens about 10 degrees before top, and closes about 50 degrees after the bottom of the stroke. The exhaust valve opens 50 degrees before the bottom of the firing stroke and closes 10 degrees after the top of the exhaust stroke.

In order to get reasonable speed and power, the inlet valve opens before the exhaust valve closes, but the gas rushing down the exhaust pipe creates a partial vacuum that continues the flow from the cylinder and prevents any exhaust gas going into the inlet pipe through the exhaust valve.

Though for all practical purposes this lets your engine idle fairly slowly, it won't get down like the old farm tractor engine that went puff-puff with a long time between puffs.

The opening of the exhaust valve 50 degrees before the piston reaches the end of its power stroke undoubtedly wastes some of the power stroke, and is a disadvantage on a stiff hill at 15 miles per hour in high gear. It is an unavoidable necessity, however, if the engine is to get rid of the pressure to prevent it holding back on the upstroke at high speed.

The late closing of the inlet valve is to let the gas continue to rush into the cylinder at high speed, but again, this prevents very slow idling.

City Motor Firm Takes Pride In Lincoln Road Race Victory

A jubilant crew at Gladwell Motors Limited this week celebrated the news that a Lincoln Capri, driven by Chuck Stevenson, Lynwood, Calif., won its class in the gruelling Pan-American road race.

Lincolns also came second, third, and fourth in the 1934-mile racing classic from Mexico City to the American border, and seven of the cars placed in the first 10 to finish in the unlimited stock car division.

"The cars are identical with my '1953 Capri," said Harry Gladwell, president of the firm at Pandora and Quadra, that handles Lincoln, Mercury, and Meteor. "They are right off the production line."

Stevenson's elapsed time was beaten by six drivers in the unlimited sports car division, but with four lap prizes and first place in his own class, he was the big money winner for the classic.

This luxury automobile has all the conveniences one expects for $6,800, such as power steering, power brakes, power windows, automatic transmission, plus a few other features that make it attractive to young men in a hurry to cross Mexico.

They like its independent front-wheel suspension of the ball-joint type, the low centre of gravity afforded by a car only 62½ inches high, and a big V-8 overhead valve engine of 317.5 cubic inches displacement that develops 205 horsepower at 4,200 revolutions per minute.

Salesmen have a special demonstration for prospective buyers who are interested in reaching high speed from a standing start.

They put the buyer in the rear seat, ask him to put his hat on the front seat, then wager that he cannot pick it up within five blocks of a standing start.

If the buyer takes the bet, they glue him to the seat with acceleration that is really astonishing to well beyond legal highway speed limits. The over-square motor operates on the comparatively high compression ratio of eight to one. Bore and stroke are 3.8 and 3.5 inches respectively, and a four-barrel carburetor and new manifold keep all eight cylinders aspiring evenly.

Adjustment of the carburetor or spark setting often will eliminate "knock," which in turn wastes both gas and power.

Potsdam Talk Proved Futile

(This is another installment of Volume VI of the war memoirs of Winston Churchill, Britain's Prime Minister. Other installments will be carried daily.)

By WINSTON S. CHURCHILL

Victory over Japan was neither the most difficult nor perhaps the most far-reaching of the problems which confronted us at the Potsdam Conference. Germany had collapsed; Europe must be rebuilt. The soldier must go home and the refugee return, if he could, to his country. Above all, the nations must make a peace in which they could live together if not in comfort, at any rate in freedom and safety.

I do not intend to recount our detailed exchanges in formal conversation on all the urgent and multitudinous questions which pressed upon us. Many of them are still unsolved. Poland, for whom Britain went to war, is neither free nor quiet; Germany is still divided; there is no peace with Russia; Russia's share of Poland, Poland's share of Germany, and the place of Germany and the Soviet Union in the world, such were the topics which dominated our discussions, and to which, for reasons of space, this account must be limited.

Limit for Poland Biggest Question

We had agreed at Yalta that Russia should advance her western frontier into Poland as far as the "Curzon Line." She had always recognized that Poland in her turn should receive substantial accessions of German territory. The question was how much? How far into Germany should she go? There had been much disagreement. Stalin wanted to extend the western frontier of Poland along the river Oder to where it joined the Western Neisse. Roosevelt, Eden, and I had insisted it should stop at the Eastern Neisse. All three heads of Governments had publicly bound themselves at Yalta to consult the Polish Government, and to leave it to the Peace Conference if we could not agree. This was the best we had been able to do. But in July, 1945, we faced a new situation. Russia had advanced her frontier to the Curzon Line. This meant, as Roosevelt and I had realized, that the three or four million Poles who lived on the wrong side of the line would have to be moved to the West. Now we were confronted with something much worse. The Soviet-dominated Government of Poland had also pressed forward, not to the Eastern Neisse, but to the Western. Much of this territory was inhabited by Germans, and although several millions had fled many had stayed behind. What was to be done with them? Moving three or four million Poles was bad enough. Were we to move more than eight million Germans as well? Even if such a transfer could be contemplated, there was not enough food for them in what was left of Germany. Much of Germany's grain came from the very land which the Poles had seized, and if this was denied us the Western Allies would be left with wrecked industrial zones and a starved and swollen population. For the future peace of Europe here was a wrong besides which Alsace-Lorraine and the Danzig Corridor were trifles. One day the Germans would want their territory back, and the Poles would not be able to stop them.

The first plenary session of the Conference was held at five o'clock on the afternoon of Tuesday, July 17 (1945). Stalin proposed that the President should take the chair. I supported this, and Mr. Truman accepted our invitation. A number of lesser problems then appeared. When the Conference met matters will be difficult to settle."

"We are not worried about reparations," said Stalin. "The United States will get none anyhow," answered Mr. Truman, "but they will also try to avoid paying anything."

"Nothing definite was fixed at Yalta about the western frontier," said Stalin. "None of us are bound."

This was true. The President said he did not think we could settle the matter now. It would have to wait for the Peace Conference.

"It will be still more difficult," said Stalin, "to restore a German administration."

"You can use a Polish one in your own zone of occupation in Germany," said the President.

"That is all very well," was Stalin's answer, "but the Germans have fled and the natural and indeed the only solution is to set up a friendly administration of Poles. This does not commit us to any particular boundary; and if the Conference cannot agree about one it can remain in suspense."

Lively Argument On Vacated Area

"Can it?" I interrupted. "These are very important areas for feeding Germany."

"Who will produce the grain?" countered Stalin. "There is nobody left to plough the land except Poles."

"What has become of the Germans?" we both asked. "They have fled."

I had taken little part in these interchanges, but now I spoke. How, I asked, were we to feed the Germans who had fled?

A quarter of Germany's arable land would be lost. If the area suggested by Britain and America was given to Poland about three or four million Poles would have to be moved; but the Soviet plan would mean shifting more than eight million Germans. Would there be room for them in what was left of Germany? I was not even sure that Stalin was right that all the Germans had fled. Some people thought that more than two millions were still there.

Stalin thereupon challenged my figures, saying that the Germans had called up many men from these regions. The rest had fled.

Now Claiming More Land Than Yielded

The President still wanted us to leave the western frontier to the Peace Conference, but I persisted.

Poland, I said, deserved compensation for the land east of the Curzon Line which she was going to lose to Russia, but she was now claiming more than she had given up. It would do Poland no good to acquire so much extra territory. If the Germans had run away from it they should be allowed to go back. The Poles had no right to risk a catastrophe in feeding Germany.

"Germany has always had to import food," said Stalin. "Let her buy it from Poland." "His Majesty's Government," I answered, "can never admit that East German territory overrun in the war has become Polish."

"But Poles inhabit it," said Stalin, "and cultivate the land. We can't compel them to produce bread and give it away to the Germans." I protested that these were not normal times. The Poles were apparently selling Silesian coal to Sweden while Great Britain was having the worst fuel shortage of any time during the war. Food and fuel from the Germans of the 1937 frontiers should be available for all Germans within them, irrespective of the zone in which they lived. Stalin asked who was to produce the coal. The Germans were not producing it, but the Poles were. The German proprietors of the Silesian coalfield had fled. If they came back the Poles would probably hang them. I reminded him of his remark at a previous meeting about not allowing memories of injuries or feelings of retribution to govern our policy, and I asked him to realize what we were faced with, namely a large number of Germans who have fled are war criminals.

I told them that there were other matters which troubled us. If British opinion were to be reassured about Poland the elections should be genuinely free and unfettered, and all the main democratic parties should have full opportunity to participate and proclaim their programs. What was the definition of democratic parties? I did not believe that only Communists were democrats. It was easy to call every one who was not a Communist a Fascist beast; but between these two extremes there lay great and powerful forces which were neither one nor the other, and had no intention of being one or the other.

We should also expect full freedom for the press, and for our Embassy, to see and report what was happening before and during the poll.

Bierut protested that it would be a terrible mistake if Great Britain, having entered the war for Poland's sake, now showed no understanding of her claims. They were modest and took account of the need of peace in Europe. Poland asked for no more than she had lost.

Next day I saw Bierut alone and once more impressed on him the importance of free elections.

I continued that Poland must have courts of law independent of the Executive. The latest development in the Balkans had been not towards Sovietization but to police government. Would Poland improve? Was the NKVD leaving the country? Bierut replied that, generally speaking, the whole Russian Army was leaving. The NKVD

Stalin said that if anyone was to be blamed it was not so much the Poles as the Russians and the circumstances.

"I understand your point, and that is exactly what I meant," answered Mr. Truman.

Meanwhile I had pondered over these questions, and I now said that we should invite the Poles to come to the Conference at once. Stalin and the President agreed, and we resolved to send them an invitation.

Accordingly, at a quarter-past three on the afternoon of July 24 the representatives of the Polish Provisional Government, headed by their Prime Minister, Bierut, came to my house in the Ringstrasse. Mr. Eden, Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, our Ambassador in Moscow, and Field-Marshal Alexander were with me.

I began by reminding them that Great Britain had entered the war because Poland had been invaded, and we had always taken the greatest interest in her, but the frontiers which she has now been offered and apparently wished to take meant that Germany would lose one-quarter of the arable land she possessed in 1937. The result would be that the Poles and the Russians had the food and fuel, while we had the mouths and the hearths. We would oppose such a division.

I told them that there were other matters which troubled us. If British opinion were to be reassured about Poland the elections should be genuinely free and unfettered, and all the main democratic parties should have full opportunity to participate and proclaim their programs. What was the definition of democratic parties? I did not believe that only Communists were democrats. played no role in Poland. The Polish Security Police were independent of them and under the Polish Government. He professed to agree with me about elections and democracy, and assured me that Poland would be one of the most democratic countries in Europe. The Poles did not favor police regimes, though exceptional measures had to be taken to heal the serious rifts of war.

I said there was no question of our standing in the way of Poland's future, but the frontier question was entangled with the problems of reparations and supply. We had had a great mass of Germans thrown upon our hands, while the Poles had the rich territories from which they had been fed. They were asking too much. We and the Americans might pursue one policy and the Russians another. That would have serious consequences.

My appeal came to nothing. The world has yet to measure the "serious consequences" which I forecast.

Reeve Sees 3-Way Split In Cowichan

Secession Move
Views Expressed

DUNCAN—North Cowichan Municipality eventually may be divided into three parts, Reeve A. E. Beasley has told a meeting of Duncan Chamber of Commerce.

Ratepayers will vote in December on the secession of the Chemainus area from the parent municipality, and Reeve Beasley predicted that the southern portion would join the city of Duncan to secure required community services.

The remaining portion would still be the seventh largest municipality in the province, he said.

He was followed by Maj. Gen. C. A. P. Murison, North Cowichan councillor, who condemned the secession move as an attempt by less than one-third of the North Cowichan ratepayers to secure the large tax revenues—35 per cent of the present total—of the MacMillan and Bloedel mill at Chemainus.

"It would be a case of going back to Methuselah's time," he said, since the remaining part of North Cowichan would have four-fifths of the present commitments with less than one-half the present assessment.

Jack Fuller Installed As Lions' Head

Jack Fuller was installed Tuesday night as president of the newly-formed Langford Lions Club by Arthur Quail of Victoria and James Bryant, Esquimalt, zone chairman.

The ceremony took place at Knotty Pine Restaurant under direction of the Victoria club, sponsors of the new Langford group. Members of the Esquimalt club also attended.

Other officers are Fred Wilway, first vice-president; Rev. H. J. Jones, second vice-president; Murray Cameron, secretary-treasurer; Ernest ten Hompel, lion tamer; Cyril Price, tail-twister.

Directors are Fred Price, George Barre, Walter Leasing and Arthur Bewley.

Color films of Lions' activities were shown by A. R. Cann, secretary of the Victoria club.

ONE HOSPITAL BED IN DUNCAN FOR EVERY 500 CHILDREN

DUNCAN—There are 6,000 children in the Cowichan district and only 12 beds in the children's ward of King's Daughters' Hospital, G. E. Wellburn, hospital board chairman, said here Wednesday night.

"The present hospital is old, completely outdated, and has certainly outlived its usefulness," Mr. Wellburn told the Kiwanis Club in support of the directors' case for a new $1,500,000 building.

Mr. Wellburn said one-third of the cost of a new hospital would have to be raised in the district. If this was done, he said, the B.C. government would match the district's contribution, and the federal government would pay an additional $1,000 per bed.

Layoffs Loom in Duncan Logging Camps, Sawmills

DUNCAN—Unemployment here is at a "low ebb," and jobs have been found for practically all available labor, according to R. S. Robinson, unemployment insurance commission manager.

Orders for office and store help have been filled, but there is little surplus of sales people to meet the coming demand for extra help at Christmas.

Logging camps and sawmills have maintained full production, although snow and irregularity of orders are expected to cause layoffs shortly.

Retail stores have reported improved business, and the construction industry is busier than usual at this time of year.

School Band Plans Two More Concerts

A highly successful concert was presented Wednesday night by the Victoria High-Central Junior High School Band to raise money toward expenses of a trip to B.C. Musical Festival in Vancouver next year.

Close to 500 persons attended the concert and gave the band an enthusiastic reception. Bandmaster Rowland Grant said the band was greatly encouraged by the turnout and would likely present two more concerts so that sufficient money would be available for both the band and the schools' orchestra to make the trip to the festival.

At the last festival the band won the B.C. championship, edging out the Kitsilano Boys' Band, which for years had no serious competition. The Victoria band aims to retain the championship in 1954.

Wednesday night's concert featured a wide range of selections, including the popular, mood piece, "Dragnet," and the ever-popular "Poet and Peasant" overture.

Bud Edens, boy soprano, provided additional entertainment. John Sawyer and Dennis Tupper.

A MONTHLY SELECTION OF HELPFUL HINTS AND RECIPES

It's party time now—Tea Biscuits for 6 or 60

SO TRY THESE RECIPES FOR EASY ENTERTAINING

Bake a Barrel-of-Fun Cake

What a party it'll be with this delightful, delectable Barrel-of-Fun Cake! It's fun to make too, with Quick-Mix Jewel—you'll whip it up in minutes. Jewel has the same wonder ingredients as the costliest shortenings and gives the same higher, lighter cakes... but it costs pennies per cake less! To make this cake you use the time and muss-saving quick-mix method in which new Jewel works so well. Have all ingredients at room temperature. Preheat oven to 375°F.

- Place 1 1/2 cup snow-white quick-mix Jewel in bowl. No need to cream at all.
- Sift together into bowl: 1 cup granulated sugar, 2 1/2 cups sifted cake flour, 1/4 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon ginger, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/4 teaspoon cloves. Add 1/2 cup brown sugar, and 3/4 cup sour milk. (To make the 1 1/4 cups of sour milk required in the recipe, place 4 teaspoons vinegar in measuring cup. Fill to 1 cup mark with sweet milk. Then combine with 1/4 cup more sweet milk.) Beat only 2 minutes on medium speed of electric mixer, or by hand, using 150 strokes per minute. (Quick-Mix Jewel cuts beating time in half!) Keep batter scraped from sides and bottom of bowl with rubber scraper.
- Add 1/2 cup more sour milk, 3 eggs, and 1/2 teaspoon maple flavouring. Beat for 2 more minutes. That's all. Just three easy steps and your Jewel Quick-Mix cake is done! Pour equal amounts of batter into 2 nine inch cake pans lined with two layers of wax paper. Bake at 375°F. for 30 minutes.

Frosting

- Cream 1/2 cup quick-mix Jewel, 1/4 teaspoon salt, and 1/2 teaspoon maple flavouring until soft and fluffy. Add alternately 3 1/2 cups sifted icing sugar and 1/4 cup double-strength hot coffee. Beat until smooth and creamy.
- Divide frosting into two bowls. To one add 1/4 cup sifted cocoa and 1 tablespoon double-strength coffee. Beat until smooth.
- Fill cake layers with one half of cocoa filling. Frost sides with remaining cocoa filling. Frost top of cake with half the maple frosting. Sprinkle with finely chopped nuts. Using a cake decorator, make a fluted edging to top and bottom of cake with the rest of the mocha frosting.

Stand back and admire.

Jewel Biscuit Mix

Sift together 8 cups flour, 4 tablespoons baking powder and 4 teaspoons salt.

With pastry knives, fork or finger tips cut in 1 cup Jewel Shortening, until mixture is the consistency of cornmeal. See how much better-blending Jewel is! Store in covered container. It is now ready to use for biscuits for 6 or 60.

Biscuits for 6

To 1 cup Jewel Biscuit Mix gradually add 1/2 cup milk, to form a soft dough. Turn onto lightly floured board and knead just enough to make the dough smooth (about 6 times). Roll or pat to 1/2 inch thickness. Cut in squares or use floured cookie cutter. Bake on an ungreased sheet in a hot oven (450°F.) from 12 to 15 minutes. Serve hot.

Biscuits for 60

Make up biscuit lots using 3 cups biscuit mix to 1 cup milk. This yields 18 large biscuits. Repeat until you have the desired number of biscuits. Three lots is plenty for a crowd. The biscuit dough can be refrigerated and baked off at the last minute to serve piping hot.

Sausage Rolls

Perfect for a supper party, these Sausage Rolls can be served with a hot vegetable casserole, and a tossed green salad on the side. Finish up with ice cream or cheese and crackers, and coffee.

- Place one pound of Swift's Brookfield Sausages in skillet. Add 1/2 cup water. Simmer for 5 minutes. Pour off any remaining water.
- Using a pastry blender, fork, two knives or finger tips, cut 7 1/2 cup Jewel Shortening into 2 cups sifted flour and 1 teaspoon salt, until mixture is the consistency of coarse cornmeal. Jewel blends easily, and makes flakier, more tender pastry.
- Blending with a fork, gradually sprinkle enough water over the flour mixture until dry spots disappear. Shape into a ball with waxed paper. Divide dough in half.
- Turn half quantity of dough onto lightly floured board. Knead twice to blend thoroughly. Roll out lightly into an 8" x 10" rectangle. With spatula divide into 8 smaller rectangles.
- Brush cooked sausage with prepared mustard. Roll up sausage in pastry strips. Place edge side down, 1/2 inch apart, in shallow baking pan. Repeat until sausages and remainder of dough are used up.
- Bake about 15 minutes at 450°F. Yields 16 rolls.

City's allocation represents 20 per cent of the total cost of the bonuses, the province paying the rest.

Council Will Protest Loss of Navy School

Support of Sister Municipalities, Other Bodies Sought in Complaint to Ottawa

City council is sending a protest to Ottawa against the navy's plan to move its supply school from Esquimalt at the end of the year.

The council is recruiting support for its stand from other Greater Victoria municipalities, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and Publicity Bureau.

In council meeting Wednesday Ald. Brent Murdoch said: "They have been depleting the armed services in this area and it's time we did something about it."

He said the navy's supply school at HMCS Naden trained about 200 men a month, adding the school was to be re-established in Eastern Canada.

Mayor to Pay Expenses for Public Meet

For years Victoria has been staging pre-election public meetings to furnish a platform from which all candidates for civic office might state their case.

This was illegal, Mayor Harrison told City Council Wednesday, following up a suggestion that the customary practice be continued this year.

Simultaneously he acknowledged that because of what had been done in the past some of the candidates would be expected to pay for the meeting; so, he said, he had arranged for one at his own expense.

The mayor said he had hired the Britannia Branch Legion Hall for Monday night, Nov. 30. He said any candidate for civic office would be allotted time provided he notified the mayor's office before 4 p.m., Friday.

Mayor Harrison said afterward it was his intention to have an impartial chairman and keep speeches of mayoralty candidates to five minutes; aldermen, four minutes, and others, three minutes.

Ald. Robert Macmillan moved and Ald. Brent Murdoch seconded that the mayor's offer be accepted. It was.

MUCH ADO ABOUT THREE TREES

Axe for 2 Park Oaks, One Alder

City Council voted Wednesday to have one elder and two old oaks removed from Beacon Hill Park.

At the same time, council repealed nine other oaks slated for the axe, and left for next year the council the question of what should be done about them.

Two weeks ago, council was asked to give its approval to a recommendation of the parks committee to have 12 trees removed from the park, on grounds they were a menace to the public.

Mayor Claude Harrison held up a vote on the question at that time so he could have a look at the trees himself and get outside opinion. He engaged the services of George Cheeke, tree surgeon from Shawnigan Lake.

The mayor presented Mr. Cheeke's report to council Wednesday.

It was Mr. Cheeke's opinion that the alder and two oaks be removed, and the remaining trees be given treatment.

Mr. Cheeke felt the cost of treatment would not be excessive. He added that his report was not intended as "adverse criticism of the park superintendent (Herb Warren) who has, I believe, been caught in a backlog of inherited neglect."

that the three ailing trees be removed and the rest referred to next year's council.

Ald. Percy Scurrell, who also had made a personal inspection of the trees since the previous council meeting, said he was in agreement.

"It would be a great pity to cut any trees down unless there is a real danger. It has taken them hundreds of years to grow. If we can save these oaks by spending some money on them, then I'm in favor of doing it," Ald. Scurrell said.

Ald. Waldo Skillings, parks committee chairman, asked the mayor to reveal Mr. Cheeke's qualifications.

"Oh, he's been in government service; has been with Macmillan and has a great forest of his own," the mayor replied.

Ald. Skillings then questioned if it was the mayor's intention to have the city retain Mr. Cheeke as a consultant on trees.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

Tony Dickson, a fine, upstanding and comparatively honest newspaperman, swears this is true. He was waiting for a bus at Yates and Douglas, when a little old lady tottered up to him and spoke confidentially. "Young man, are you waiting for the bus?" she asked. "Yes, ma'am," said Tony. "Well, I have to go into the bank for awhile, so I won't need my transfer," said the old lady. "Would you like it?" Tony, touched by the generosity of the offer, declined courteously on the grounds he had a bus pass. "Oh, dear," said the old lady, "I do hate to let a transfer go to waste."

In researching for facts to use in his mayoralty campaign, the dog Punch has come across a case of rank discrimination against women. Women are not allowed to pay the city poll tax of $5. Punch says this situation is almost as inequitable as the lack of legislation to allow cats to pay license fees. "Equal rights for all!" cries Punch. "Especially me."

Victoria Mothers Rally to Help Drive for Funds to Fight Polio

Victoria, hit for the first time this year by widespread polio, has decided to do something positive about it at the public level. A "Polio Mothers" campaign will start in January. Volunteer mothers will raise funds to help combat the crippling disease. Mrs. Wallace, wife of Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace, will lead the drive to be held in the Greater Victoria area Jan. 11 to Feb. 13. Approximately 3,000 mothers are needed to assist in the campaign. Their job will be to canvass for funds. Canvassers will be limited to one hour only, between 6:30 and 7:30 p.m. Feb. 13. The drive is sponsored by the Victoria and Vancouver Island Kiwanis clubs. Objective is $30,000. Need for the fund was accentuated by the fact that prior to this year Victoria has been untouched by polio. But in 1953 nearly 100 victims of the disease have been treated in the isolation ward of the Royal Jubilee Hospital. Business and industry as well as householders, will be canvassed to support the campaign. Funds will be used for medical and rehabilitation purposes. In addition, medical expenses of polio victims will be paid when considered necessary. All money collected will be used in the Victoria area.

Jobless Man's Defense Wins Court Sympathy

Vagrancy Charge Acquittal Gained

An unemployed man who pleaded his own defense against a charge of vagrancy talked his way to freedom in city police court today.

He told the court that he had come here from Calgary, fetched his wife from Nanaimo and had rented an apartment while he sought work for the last three weeks. He had worked two days.

"How can I settle down with police bothering me all the time?" he asked Magistrate H. C. Hall.

Held in jail since Wednesday night when he was picked up by police, the man had a record of shop breaking, theft and participating in an affray in several western Canada centres.

He was arrested in the vicinity where a man had been seen loitering and a window had been removed from Gibson's Bowling Alley.

He objected from the dock when city prosecutor A. Bigelow made reference to the latter fact and his objection was sustained by Magistrate Hall.

His voice shook as he told the court that he had two children to support and a third child expected.

He said he had been in National Selective Service every day except for two days during which he was employed roofing. "A man with your record wandering around at 12:15 a.m. is bound to get into difficulty," the magistrate warned him as he dismissed the charge.

5-Cent Bus Fare In Slack Hours Won't Rule Here

B.C. Electric has announced five-cent bus fares on Vancouver buses during the slack hours of the Christmas shopping season.

The new five-cent shoppers' fare will go into effect about Dec. 1 on special buses traveling downtown routes during non-rush hours.

The company is initiating the lower fare in an attempt to avoid "impossible loads" during peak hours of travel.

B.C. Electric officials here say no similar move is contemplated in Victoria.

The five-cent fare will mean a big aggregate saving to Vancouver people. The regular fare is 15 cents or four tickets for 50 cents.

Impaired Driving Brings $250 Fine

Pleading guilty in police court today to a charge of driving while her ability was impaired by alcohol, Mrs. Elsie Boyd, 857 McClure, was fined $250.

She was arrested following a collision at Fort and Cook November 21. Police said she had violated a red light and struck a car, doing $126 damages. No one was injured.

A report will go forward to the superintendent of motor vehicles.

SIX CITY NURSES SEEK AIR STEWARDESS JOBS

Employment supervisor R. B. Van Horne of Canadian Pacific Air Lines, Vancouver, is here today to interview applicants for stewardess for domestic air routes.

Six graduate nurses so far have applied. Mr. Van Horne describes the requirements for the job as "very strict."

A successful applicant must be: a graduate nurse, between 22 and 26 years old; five foot two to five foot six in height; between 110 and 125 pounds; with good eyesight (no glasses allowed) and a "pleasing appearance and personality."

Stewardesses are first employed on domestic routes, and when more experienced can apply for overseas service. They work a total of 100 hours per month.

End of Sacred Rule Seen by Tory Leader

The Social Credit defeat in the Victoria by-election "could well result in the beginning of the end for Social Credit in Canada and will definitely end Premier Bennett's political career," Progressive Conservative leader Deane Finlayson said today.

"The inconsistency of Social Credit in B.C.—on the one hand embracing Social Credit monetary philosophy and on the other masquerading as Conservatives—has conspired against the party," he said.

He said it's proof of the adage: "You can fool some of the people all of the time, and you can fool some of the people all of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time."

Mr. Finlayson said the government no longer enjoys the confidence of the people. "This lack of confidence has now become the personal problem of the premier. He has had the unhappy task of trying to pacify the demands of his orthodox Social Credit following, while at the same time attempting to pass himself off as a Conservative-type thinker."

"The financial claims of the premier, coupled with his taxation policy, were pressed upon him by the Social Credit block in the party. They conspired to defeat his candidate, Mr. Gunderson, in spite of a tremendous advertising splurge."

Car Owners' New Addresses Sought By Motor Branch

Have you changed your address in the last year? If so, and you are a car owner, the motor vehicle branch wants to know the new address— pronto.

The branch is getting ready to send out 350,000 license renewal forms. Last year 10,000 came back undelivered because motorists had changed addresses and not informed the motor vehicle branch.

"We don't want a repeat of this because it causes inconvenience to us and the motorists," said an official.

The law says and backs it up with a fine, that motorists must register changes of address with the branch. But nobody is going to be fined at this stage if they inform the branch of an address change.

Branch officials just want their machinery to run smoothly, and guard motorists against the possibility of not having a license February 28.

Aldermanic Hopefuls Hit Trail Tonight

Serious campaigning by those intending to seek civic office in the Dec. 10 elections begins tonight with a meeting for all aldermanic aspirants at Victoria West Community Centre, 802 Catherine Street.

Mayoralty candidates have not been invited to attend, but school board and police commission candidates will be provided time to address the audience if they wish.

A meeting for all civic candidates will be held Monday night at 8 in the Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion Hall, and further meetings will be announced later.

Farm-Price Decline City Wage Threat

CONTROL BODY FOR PRO BOUTS NAMED BY CITY

City Council acted on a recommendation of its executive committee Wednesday and set up the city's first athletic commission for regulating and supervising all professional boxing and wrestling to be staged here.

Named to the commission were Dr. Jack Patterson, former amateur boxing champion; Archie McKinnon, athletic director of the Victoria YMCA; and Doug Fletcher, organizer of junior lacrosse and hockey leagues. Commissioners will not receive pay.

Shipyard Wage Talks Doomed, CCL Agent Says

Just Going Through Motions—Cornthwaite

A meeting between CCL machinists, a government conciliation officer and a representative of Yarrows Ltd., scheduled for 2:30 p.m. today, was doomed before it started.

"Nothing will come out of it," said J. A. Cornthwaite, business agent for Machinists, Fitters and Helpers Union Local No. 3. "We're just going through the motions, and the law is an ass," he said.

Conciliation officer in the union-management contract dispute is W. T. McLaughlin. T. R. Watt, a Vancouver labor relations consultant, represents the shipyards.

Earlier in negotiations Mr. Cornthwaite criticized the practice of employers hiring an outside spokesman to present their case.

"It's the employer's obligation to his men to meet them in negotiations," he said.

NO WAGE DISPUTE

The union's aim, he said, is a two and one-half cent hourly wage increase, pay for all statutory holidays, four per cent annual vacation allowance, and double time for all Saturday work instead of for time worked after four hours. The operators have offered only the wage increase.

"Our demands are the same as those contained in the new Vancouver agreement," he said.

Civilian Sailors Get Retroactive Wage Increases

More than $500 retroactive pay soon will be on its way to about 80 civilian seamen employed here by the federal government.

Robert Smeal, western representative of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and OTW (CCL), said today that $30 monthly increases had been approved by the treasury board retroactive to June 1, 1952.

The men are "unlicensed personnel" employed aboard auxiliary vessels and harbor craft at H.M.C. Dockyard, and on two weather ships.

He classified them as temporary civil servants who are paid wages prevailing in their trade in their locality. The new pay schedule is based on that of B.C. Coast Steamship Service, he said.

Low B.C. Farm Prices Will Bring Unemployment, BCFA Head Predicts

Canada's declining farm economy will be reflected in lower wages and unemployment in the cities, the B.C. Federation of Agriculture was told today by A. H. Mercer, president, as the annual convention opened in Empress Hotel today.

The two-day convention was opened at the Empress Hotel by Mayor Claude Harrison. Over 150 delegates representing farm organizations from all parts of the province are attending the meeting.

Mr. Mercer said farmers are concerned with the gradual decline in prices of farm products. "The declining position of agriculture in Canada can only eventually be reflected in lower city wages and unemployment as farmers are the largest purchasers of city goods and services," he pointed out.

British Columbia farmers were urged to adopt a policy of "wait and see" with regard to the provincial government's proposed new school taxation legislation.

Charles E. S. Walls, secretary of the federation, said while

He advocated this policy in view of the disagreement among farmers with regard to the "Rolson Formula" and the Equalized Assessment Act which were among the main provincial issues in the last provincial elections.

Mr. Walls felt that before anything should be said for and against the taxation schemes, the legislation should be tested. "In spite of the government fighting the last election on the basis of the Rolson Formula, they, nevertheless, neglected to present this formula at the legislation at the recent sitting of the House," he said.

Mr. Walls also said the new Equalized Assessment Act should be allowed to go into operation so that farmers could see to what extent the assessing of industrial machinery will affect taxation.

NEW CONSTITUTION

The opening session of the convention was mainly taken up with discussions with regard to a new constitution for the federation and with resolutions. Among the resolutions listed for submission to the meeting is a request for the grading of cut-up poultry meat. The resolution was submitted by the Vancouver Island Poultry Cooperative, which claimed that such regulations would stop the sale of inferior poultry meat on the market.

The B.C. Turkey Breeders' Association also requested that foreign turkeys be marked as to their origin. A highlight of the meeting was the finals of the junior farmer public speaking contest. Annabelle Loveseth, Cowichan Station, represented Vancouver Island. Results will be announced later.

A wallet containing $70 and a dockyard pass was reported lost at the Memorial Arena Wednesday night. Owner is Jack Davey, 1437 Taunton Road.

Fifth Man Challenges For Esquimalt Council

Fifth man to announce entry in the Esquimalt December election battle for three vacant seats is painting contractor and former councillor, Walter Holder.

None of the five announced council candidates nor the one opposing candidate for reeve, Mr. Whisker, has yet officially filed.

ASK The TIMES

Q. — Who is the secretary of the Youth Hostel Association in Victoria? — N. B.

A. — There are Youth Hostel accommodations at Mount Douglas Park. This is the off-season, summer months being the most attractive to young travelers who are adventuring. There formerly was a secretary in Victoria, but now host affairs on this coast are directed from the branch in Vancouver, to which inquirers may address letters.

Q. — What privileges are accorded a Victoria fire chief as to the use of the department chief's car during off-duty hours? Why are de luxe sedans used instead of plain business coupes? — K. S.

A. — The chief is on 24-hour call. He is required to have the car handy at all times so that when he is called, he can respond as quickly as possible. The chief's car is not a de luxe model. It is a standard model equipped with the following accessories: solex glass, turning lights, heater and defroster and seat covers. City council circles state it is a sedan because the chief often is required to take other civic officials on inspections, and at other times uses the car for moving men and equipment from one location to another.

Q. — A well-known member of the Esquimalt Lions, Mr. Holder served one year on council in 1950 when he completed the two-year term of present Reeve A. C. Wurtelle who was elevated to the reeve's office from council.

Retiring councillors this year are Mrs. W. H. Dallaway, and G. R. Guillemaud and G. F. Argyle, who will.

Other bids for council seat have been announced by Ralph Meakes, recently chairman of the Esquimalt Ratepayers' Association, and sawmill foreman, Roy Simmons.

Reeve Wurtelle will be opposed by former MLA, Andrew Whisker, for the reeve'ship.

FIRST TO FILE

First nomination papers to be filed for December municipal elections in Esquimalt were those of reeve Wurtelle.

Model of New Coventry Cathedral Displayed Here

City architects Patrick Birley and Ron Wakefield examine scale model of new cathedral to be built at Coventry, replacing the one destroyed in mass bombing raids during the German blitz. Ruins of old cathedral are also shown in scale, in front of the new building. Model is on display at T. Eaton Co. Basil Spence, designer of the cathedral, is in Victoria today and will speak in Memorial Hall at 8 p.m. Friday. Mr. Spence is here in support of Victoria's Christ Church Cathedral building fund, but his illustrated talk will deal with the new Coventry cathedral. (Times photo.)

Ink and Paper Match!
Say, What Next, Man?

By PENNY SAVER

Symphony tints! That's how a stationery manufacturing company describes its latest effort, a boxed set of fine quality stationery with a bottle of ink of the same color, but in a darker tone. Paper comes in yellow, blue, mauve and two shades of pink... one to combine with red ink, the other to combine with wine ink!

A rather unusual way to drop a note of thanks or an informal invitation, don't you think? For just 89 cents you can have a boxful! (That price includes ink.)

Every woman in your household (providing she's over two years of age) can own a pair of Chinese lounging pyjamas!

Starting with the size 2 to 6X group, the baby of the family would look adorable in a pair with black satin trousers and a top of pale blue or Chinese red satin. The tops, which are styled with mandarin collars and three-quarter-length sleeves, are embroidered with tiny lanterns and fans... $3.98.

Stepping up to the size 8 to 14 bracket, you'll find 'jamas with similarly-styled tops in pink, yellow or red quilted satin, and black satin bottoms. They cost $5.95.

Then there are sizes 12 to 20! They've also got the satin bottoms, but the tops are made of sculptured nylon. That is, nylon with a sort of embossed pattern on it. With mandarin collars and three-quarter-length sleeves, these tie at the waist with a self-belt. In peacock or coral, they cost $10.95 a pair!

A few nights ago I told you about a marvellous plastic snow for table centrepieces... and I wrote... it's inflammable! Yes, just stick your candles in the snow, light them, and your home will go up in lovely red and blue Christmas flames! Sorry! I meant to say "Non-Inflammable!"

Legion Auxiliary
Executive Meets

The annual provincial executive meeting of Ladies' Auxiliaries to British Columbia and the Northwest States Command of the Canadian Legion was held in Victoria under the sponsorship of the South Vancouver Island District Council Ladies' Auxiliaries.

Mrs. A. Erickson, Creston, B.C., provincial president, was in the chair and provincial officers and delegates from many parts of the province were present. Addresses of welcome were given by Mayor Claude Harrison for the city, L. Fieldhouse on behalf of Victoria Zone Council and Naval Veterans Branch, and Mrs. A. Ketchell, president of the district council auxiliaries. Rev. Douglas Kendall took devotionals period.

Reports were heard on work done by legion auxiliaries in hospitals on the mainland, in Vancouver and Victoria. Mrs. E. Jarvis, convener, gave a report on Victoria Legion Day. Assistance was given to British flood victims and support given to legion scholarships—it was reported. Much work had also been done in connection with Poppy Day.

At conclusion of the meeting tea was served by members of the South Vancouver Island Auxiliaries.

It was announced the annual provincial convention of ladies auxiliaries will be held in Pen-ticton the end-of-next May.

Never Nag Husband;
Be Subtle, Tactful

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

Many of the disagreements and conflicts between people could be solved if there were mutual respect, admiration, and love. The wife who wrote the following letter would find her problems not so difficult if she changed her attitude toward her husband. She writes:

(Q)—"My mother once said that if you are good to a person, he will be good to you. I have tried to be a good wife although I get upset and discouraged. My husband says I have become a nag. Do you think it might be better not to say anything at all when problems come up, such as my husband's drinking and neglecting his family?"

(A)—You certainly will not solve your problems by making your husband think you are a nag. In fact, he will learn to turn a deaf ear to your complaints.

By nagging, you are showing your husband that you do not respect him. No man likes that from his wife.

This, of course, does not mean that you should overlook your husband's faults or that you should not try to correct those that are standing in the way of a happy marriage. It merely means that you should be more subtle.

Never complain about what your husband does at the time he is doing it. Instead, wait until you and he are discussing matters in a calm, pleasant way. Talk them over with him rationally and unemotionally, always emphasizing the side that he is hurting himself, his chances for success, etc., by what he is doing.

As a special service to our readers, Dr. Hurlock has written a 64-page booklet, "You and Your Problems." For your copy send 15 cents in coin with a self-addressed stamped envelope to this newspaper.

Shoes Make Shopping Gay or Grey at This Season of Year

Are you ready to drop dead about this time of year?

Christmas shopping has that effect on too many women.

Actually, the holiday shopping season should be one of gaiety and warm thoughts of pleasures to come. Instead, all too often it's a period that is anticipated with dread and lived through in pain and discomfort.

It doesn't have to be. True, there's no substitute for the basketfuls of money you'll need, and nothing you buy will satisfy Aunt Caroline, who never likes what you get her.

But you can do away with those nagging headaches, horrible pains in your back and aching feet that start to complain when you're only a quarter way down your Christmas list.

Foot doctors make a few simple recommendations: Wear shoes with medium heels. Make certain your shoes fit properly, and that they have supple leather uppers and flexible, resilient leather soles. The leather uppers will give with the foot during the many thousands of movements it makes during the day, and at the same time will provide the support needed for a long period on your feet. The leather soles will absorb the terrific poundings your feet take on the 11 or 12 miles you cover during a day of shopping.

A SILVER ANNIVERSARY—Yesterday afternoon at Government House during the annual Christmas party for blind citizens of Victoria, Capt. M. C. Robinson, MBE, left, chairman of the western division of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, cut a birthday cake to mark the 25th year such a party has been held at Government House. Centre—Among those present were Mr. F. C. Boyes, Vancouver, director of the western division of the CNIB for 25 years, and Mrs. Boyes. Right—Special guests of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Clarence Wallace at the party were Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Welch of Qualicum, who recently returned from a trip to the British Isles. When they left London they were entrusted with W. A. McAdam, British Columbia Agent-General, with pictures of Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburgh to be delivered to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor at Government House, where they now hang on either side of the big fireplace in the entrance hall.

Party at Government House

Seated at the head table with His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Clarence Wallace at the 25th annual Christmas party for blind citizens of Victoria at Government House, yesterday afternoon were Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, Capt. M. C. Robinson, chairman of the western division of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, and Mrs. Robinson; Hon. Eric Martin, Minister of Health and Welfare, and Mrs. Martin; Capt. R. A. Pennington and Mrs. Pennington; Mrs. Elmar Gunderson, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Boyes, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Griffiths, Mme. Renee Archibald, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Victoria Branch, CNIB; Mr. and Mrs. E. Brettell and Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Welch.

Tables were decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums and the head table was centred with a silver anniversary cake, decorated in white, yellow and silver.

Program included an address by Capt. Robinson followed by cutting of the birthday cake. A musical program arranged by Mme. Archibald, was presented by Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Timp and Miss Grace Adams. The afternoon concluded with a vote of thanks given by Mme. Archibald and responded to by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor.

Capt. Robinson and Mrs. Thorpe Double, a member of the auxiliary, were both at the first party 25 years ago and both were present yesterday but Mrs. T. A. Rickard, honorary president, and a charter member was unable to attend. Among the blind who attended the anniversary party who were present for the first one were Miss Dorothy Stark, Mr. E. J. Turner and Mr. A. H. Crocker.

Cmdr. Hew Paterson and Col. R. L. Mitchell acted as aides-de-camp. Members of the CNIB auxiliary provided transportation for the guests both to and from the party.

Parties for Miss Liersch

Honoring Miss Ann Liersch, bride-elect of December, Mrs. C. W. King and Mrs. C. J. Harrington entertained at a coffee party Monday at the home of the latter on Oliver Street. An arrangement of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums decorated the refreshment table, which was covered with a cutwork cloth. Mrs. Fred McLeod presided at the urn.

Miss Liersch and her fiancé, Mr. Robert E. Holden, were honored at a recent cocktail party given by the parents of the bride-elect, Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Liersch, 216 Douglas Street. There were approximately 60 guests.

Shower for Miss Corinne Moore

Mrs. Bruce Hutchison and Miss Joan Hutchison entertained Wednesday evening at their home on Rogers Road with a cup and saucer shower to honor Miss Corinne Moore who is to be married to Mr. Robert Hutchison in mid-December. Gifts were arranged in a large replica of a cup and saucer and presented to the honor guest with a corsage of pink carnations. Her mother, Mrs. Stanley Moore, received pale yellow carnations. Refreshments were served from a table centred with a silver bowl of pale yellow chrysanthemums and lighted yellow candles in silver candelabra.

Mrs. Jack Carlson and Miss Hutchison presided. Other invited guests were Mrs. Ernest Carlson, Mrs. Leslie Fox, Mrs. Len Acres, Mrs. Bruce Humber, Mr. Dick Moore, Mrs. John Olsen, Mrs. Harold Henderson, Mrs. Kenneth MacCarter, Mrs. Ashley Sparks, Mrs. Roger Kemble, Mrs. H. Ellis, Misses Mary Nicholson, Phyllis Wakeland, Jeannette Patterson, Jeanne Ellis, Joan Ellis, Joan Milloy, Marilyn Olson and Elizabeth Forbes.

HUSBAND, WIFE PIANO CONCERT MONDAY NIGHT

So far as is known at present, the only two-piano concert to be given in Victoria this season will be presented Monday night at First United Church by Robin and Winnifred Wood. The Esquimalt-born musician, who has made so profound an impression on local musicians and music-lovers in solo appearances, with his great artistry and virtuosity, and his wife, who is also an extremely fine concert artist, hope to build a joint career around their two-piano work, which has been described by a high British authority as "impressive."

Sponsoring Monday's concert is the Cerebral Palsy Association and the committee is hoping for a packed auditorium to hear this last concert before Mr. and Mrs. Wood leave to fulfill engagements in the east and overseas.

Tickets for the event are obtainable at Fletcher's, Standard Furniture, Home Furniture and for convenience of Oak Bay residents at Ryland Huntley's Radio Lounge, Oak Bay Avenue.

City Objects to Concert Fee

City Council is renewing efforts to have the Canadian Copyright Act amended so that performances of bands or orchestras in public parks or in municipal buildings for entertainment of the public may be exempt from payment of any copyright fee or license.

Council passed a resolution to this effect Wednesday. It was moved by Ald. Waldo Skillings and seconded by Ald. Margaret Christie.

They explained the Canadian Authors and Publishers' Association was currently attempting to increase the tariff of fees in respect to musical performances.

Council took a similar stand against royalty fees in respect to free, public concerts in April, 1951.

(A) "RETURN TO PARADISE" (Odeon) - This is a bitersweet romance that tears at the heartstrings, adds understanding to wanderlust and makes the distant pastures a little less green.

Providing an ironic background for the love of a beachcomber for a native girl is the breath-taking loveliness of the South Sea Islands. But no matter the loveliness of nature it cannot make up for the ugliness of life as directed by bigoted missionary Barry Jones who plays god for the natives with a tyranny and ruthlessness that makes newcomer beachcomber Gary Cooper lead an uprising that restores the law into the hands of the gay, tender, peaceful natives.

Life in this seeming Eden doesn't last for long, however.

LONESOME FOR CANADA

Lady Rose Would Return

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON (CP) - Lady Rose Alexander is a "little bit" lonesome for Canada and she'd like to go back, but it won't be for a while.

The daughter of Canada's former governor-general has promised her family she will remain in Britain another 18 months. Then she'll decide whether her future lies here or in Canada.

The attractive, 21-year-old Lady Rose has nothing against Britain. It's just that she spent seven important years in Canada. Now that she's back in London she finds many of her old friends have grown up, moved away or found new interests.

FRIENDS IN CANADA
"All my friends are in Canada," she said. "Now I have to start all over again."

Lady Rose's dark-haired mother, Countess Alexander, explained: "It all takes time. My husband and I are so busy it means Rose spends much time alone."

Meanwhile, Lady Rose has taken a stenographer's job in a civil engineering office off Park Lane. She cycles to work daily much to the amusement of her soldierly father Earl Alexander, now Britain's defense minister.

"It's good for her," Lord Alexander jokingly said at a "family" interview. Actually he thinks his daughter has plenty of nerve to brave London's west end traffic.

"You could say it is improving my vocabulary," chimed in Lady Rose, referring to the colorful, language London's taxi and bus drivers sometimes use when cyclists get in their way.

The Alexanders' only daughter - there are two sons, Shane, 18 (Baron Rideau) and Brian, 14 - came back to Britain last May after completing two years of an arts course at McGill University. Like many Canadians who come to Britain, her first reaction was to shiver. "How I miss the Canadian winter," she said, looking out at London's night lights wreathed in fog.

EMBARRASSING MOMENT
A favorite family reminiscence concerns the Coronation. Young Brian, acting as his father's page in a little Lord Fauntleroy costume of white knee-pants, white silk stockings and lace ruffles, was en route to Westminster Abbey when a woman within earshot said: "Isn't he sweet?"

Brian blushed brick-red, bolted back inside the Alexander apartment and had to be coaxed out again. If he'd dared, the Hon. Brian would have ripped off the fancy clothes.

The Alexanders now look forward to a long Christmas weekend at their country home in Surrey.

"There will be quite a house party," said Countess Alexander. Besides herself and Lady Rose there will be Lord Alexander, young Brian and adopted daughter Susan. Shane, now doing his compulsory army service in the Irish Guards, his father's old regiment, will also be home for Christmas and the party will be completed by the countess' brother, the Earl of Lucan, and four children.

Even if they wanted to the Alexanders would find it difficult to forget Canada.

"There's always some visiting Canadian dropping in," said Countess Alexander. Just recently she had resident Canadian members of the Women's Club down to see the Canadian kitchen given by the women of Canada.

STILL ON JOB

CANBERRA (CP) - Air Minister William McMahon said the Royal Australian Air Force squadron in Korea is being maintained at operational readiness in case the truce is broken.

Vandals Damage Car of Crippled Man

Heartless vandals attacked a small English convertible owned by a crippled shopkeeper Wednesday night.

Hudson Blake, 520 Linden, proprietor of B.C. Craft House, told police that while his car sat in front of his home, someone slashed the canvas top and turned on signal blinkers before running away.

Mr. Blake could not place his car in the garage as neighbors were constructing a new cement walk for his wheel chair Wednesday.

A friend, B. J. Gadsden, former city police commissioner, has offered a reward for information leading to arrest of the culprits.

The car is a specially equipped vehicle with hand controls.

"Custom-made" Coffee New Breakfast Vogue

Marvellous 100% Real Coffee Made "Strong, Medium or Mild"
Right in the Cup

At breakfast you could always get your toast light or dark—your bacon medium or well-done—your eggs, 2, 3 or 4-minute boiled. But your coffee? Well, you just got coffee!

The coffee might be too strong for you—it tasted bitter. Or too mild for you—it tasted weak. But if you were in the minority—too bad! After all, one pot of coffee can't satisfy everybody's taste.

But then came the revolution—the "Coffee Revolution"! Now the most forgotten "little man" can get just the cup of coffee he likes! Seriously, though, it's the women who make the coffee who brought on the revolution! It was they who discovered the wonderful new Instant Chase & Sanborn, and started serving it for breakfast.

First of all, here's 100% real coffee that really tastes like it. Chase & Sanborn scientists saw to that! They took on the job of producing an "instant" worthy of Chase & Sanborn's 100-year-old coffee reputation. They never relaxed till they had succeeded in extracting from the finest coffee beans the color and texture—the rich robust flavor and aroma of freshly ground coffee.

Next, housewives decided that this definitely superior "instant" plainly belongs whenever and wherever coffee is served. And then, everybody caught on to the other important benefit. Cups of Instant Chase & Sanborn can be "custom-made" to each person's taste. Goodbye to the old one-pot handicap!

Farewell to Grounds

For the housewife, Instant Chase & Sanborn means the end of that tedious after-meal chore of scouring a stained coffee pot and disposing of coffee grounds. Here is the modern, dainty, trouble-free way of serving fine coffee.

Budgeteers are excited about the savings on Instant Chase & Sanborn too. The regular size jar makes about the same number of cups as a pound of regular ground coffee. Yet it sells up to 40¢ less than a pound of regular coffee.

THIS REALLY IS MY COFFEE!

New Instant Chase & Sanborn is 100% real coffee—and tastes like it. Rousing, rich-flavored coffee—ready with its magical lift the moment you add the hot water.

It's your kind of coffee—made by people with nearly 100 years of coffee experience.

One sip and you'll agree—it's so good you'll make it your regular coffee!

Now!...the Flavor and Aroma of Freshly Ground Coffee Instantly!

Selecting Turkey Bluebloods for Bird Show

The biggest meat-producing turkeys among a flock of some 5,000 birds are being selected by C. E. Whitney-Griffiths, Metchosis, for a turkey show which opened at the Crystal Garden today. The only one of its kind in Canada, the show is sponsored by the Vancouver Island Turkey Improvement Association. It attracts turkey raisers from all parts of province. This Island industry is now valued at close to $1,000,000. (CBC Travel Bureau photo.)

Coward-to-Howard Switch At Totem Theatre Monday

Totem Theatre switches at the end of this week from Coward to Howard.

The current attraction, "Present Laughter," by Noel Coward, will complete its run Saturday. On Monday, Leslie Howard's "Elizabeth Sleeps Out" will be the play.

Howard's comedy has to do with a group of maiden aunts and their alcoholic nephew, who employs another man to impersonate him for his aunt's benefit.

Leading roles will be taken by Rosemary Malkin, Daphne Goldrick, Stuart Baker and Neil MacLeod.

Blowout Fatal

WILLIAMSBURG, Ky. (AP)—A blowout on a wheelbarrow resulted in the death of a service station operator Wednesday. Ben F. Caddell, 64, was killed instantly when a rim flew apart and struck him in the face and chest as he removed the wheelbarrow's tire and tube to repair a leak.

COMMENTS:

ACROSS

7. MIND is best since you would not expect two people who were both of the GUARDING KIND, for example, to do so.

8. PULL-PALETTE. THE POLICE quite often HAVE to take someone in the execution of their duty.

11. COSN is usually "cosn cosn men" is a natural expression. "Has Looz some men?" has a weird expression you would hardly use.

12. YELL is best. A YELL is a boxer's usual encouragement or exhortation of some sort, whereas the BELT is a signal to STOP fighting as well as fight.

13. GOWN is best. It is more likely since no place can be ignored.

 19. If you FAIL him-let him down on his knees.
 20. For instance, it might be quite understood that you must FOIL him whenever he fails.
 21. The clue is right for PIP, but an understatements-for-PIN- The clue is wrong for FRANTIC.
 22. no; just worried.
 23. swallow a PIN.
 24. The clue is best because SCOPE is ALWAYS aid to progress, but just "sometimes." A SLOPE can sometimes be, particularly when it is a SLOPE.
 25. SKIES is best. SKIER needs some qualification, such as "expert."
 SKI is an ordinary word.
 SKIER to be "particularly bad" at any time. SKIES, however, might well be.

2. POISON is best as it certainly can. This is too firm a statement to make about PRISON, however, which is intended to have a CORRECTIVE influence.

3. ADDITION is best. The clue implies that whereas one naturally doesn't WANT to make any mistakes, it might not matter TOO seriously if one does. This is stronger for

5. PRICE is best since the key lines in the words "may be said" which allude to the well-known expression "every man has his price."

6. FELLOW is best. "If enraged" points to FELLOW, who is certainly not alarming in his normal state. A BELLOW CAN be quite alarming whether it happens to be an enraged one or not.

A PEN tends to grow on one, whereas a PEN may become obsolescent and leaky.

GUEST WRITER'S VIEWPOINT

Affair of Gouzenko Bound to Leave Scars

(On a tour of western Canada speaking to branches of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, William H. Hessler, foreign news analyst of the Cincinnati Enquirer, has been visiting Victoria this week. In the light of the current spat between the United States and Canada over Gouzenko affairs, Mr. Hessler commented on his guest article for The Times explaining what McCarthyism is about and what Americans themselves think about it. His article follows.)

By WILLIAM H. HESSLER

Many years ago, in a transparent attempt to disarm the fears and resentments of the democratic world, Benito Mussolini walked out onto his favorite balcony and said "Fascism is not a commodity for export." Whether he was sincere or not makes little difference. For no country has the means of preventing the export of political ideas and systems. And no country, it lives in freedom, has any way of preventing the importation of ideas. It is even harder to block the migration of a political idea than to check the spread of a virus-infection across a political frontier.

The principal contagion now prevalent in the United States, commonly called McCarthyism, was not fabricated for export, of course. And unlike Fascism or Communism, it is not a formal body of doctrine, a political system. Yet it would be rash to say it is not exportable. In sober truth, nothing is so likely to spread by its own inner dynamic as a climate of suspicion, because it feeds on itself and creates the conditions in which suspicion can thrive and multiply.

It has been my privilege, as a guest of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, to travel across western Canada in the last 10 days, addressing its various branches—and also consorting with fellow-newspapermen at each stop. This happens to have been an unusual period in Canadian-American relations. Each day I have been here, the relations of our country and mine have grown worse—for which I take no responsibility. I am sure this will blow over, this sudden upsurge of anger and resentment over the Gouzenko business. But it will leave some scars, as words spoken in anger usually do.

Warnings Against the Plague of Fear

Before leaving Canada, with the warmest feelings for its people and admiration for their spectacular industrial progress, I welcome the opportunity to warn them—if a warning is needed—against the plague of fear and suspicion that has spread over my own country. They cannot erect a tariff wall against ideas—good ones or bad. Their protection against the inroads of hysteria must lie in their own steadfast affirmation of democratic principle and civil liberty.

In sundry forms, over quite some years, the thing we now call McCarthyism has done enormous damage in the United States. It includes the systematic harassment of those who make and conduct our foreign policy. And it has shattered the morale and the efficiency of our foreign service. It has induced such timidity in the State Department as to impair our foreign policy measurably.

It has encroached on the rights of Americans as individuals. Congressional investigating committees, under the guise of ferreting out Reds, have come to the point of trying people in the headlines and destroying public reputations without establishing proof, without giving their victims the protections they would have in a court of law.

Equally serious, McCarthyism has reduced America's prestige abroad and has poisoned our relations with various foreign countries—allies and partners of immense value to American security. The recriminations of the last 10 days across the Canadian-American border provide the most vivid example of this to date. We have seen the engines of personal attack and vilification in the United States turned against the foreign minister of Canada, just as they have been turned against various upright and innocent Americans in years past.

Canada Well Inoculated Against the Virus

This is itself an export shipment of McCarthyism—a small and in itself a laughable shipment; so preposterous is the charge. Yet if it proves possible for Senator William Jenner's subcommittee to come to Canada at its own demand and interrogate a Canadian citizen, we shall have to set it down in the record that the export of McCarthyism is under way in earnest.

From my observations of the last 10 days, however, based on conversation with several hundreds of Canadians in many cities and from many callings, I have the strong feeling that Canada is well inoculated against the virus. I have not found even one person who is not well aware of the evil and the mischief of this outlook of suspicion, this technique of smearing by unproved accusation, that we label McCarthyism.

This is your one and only rampart, in Canada. You cannot block off the infiltration of hysterical fears by closing the border. You cannot shut out the flow of news, or of comment on the news. Nor should you try. Only as you are resolved not to give way to the tyranny of fear can you preserve the calm, sane outlook that respects the individual's right to a good reputation unless he is proved to be unworthy.

I have one more observation to make—that McCarthyism, by whatever name, is a hardy disease. It is far easier to prevent, before infection, than to cure after the tissues of the body politic are contaminated.

THANKSGIVING MARKED BY MILLIONS IN U.S.

NEW YORK (CP)—Americans celebrated Thanksgiving today—thankful that the shooting war was over in Korea. Millions of prayers were offered for this and other blessings.

Special Thanksgiving services were held in churches and many Americans at home later attended massive street parades and football games before going home to traditional turkey dinners.

President and Mrs. Eisenhower were on a short vacation in Augusta, Ga., and attended church early in the day. They planned to dine with members of the family.

Stipulations Bother U.S.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Gouzenko controversy, apparently resolved Wednesday, was higher in the air than ever today.

Canada, after insistent United States requests, said it is willing to arrange a secret meeting between Igor Gouzenko and "any person" designated by the U.S. government.

There were three "ifs" Gouzenko must agree, the meeting must be under Canadian auspices—that is, in Canada—and the Canadian government must give its approval before any Gouzenko testimony could be made public.

The last stipulation stuck in the craw of Senator William Jenner, chairman of the U.S. Senate internal security subcommittee which wants to quiz Gouzenko, former code clerk in the Soviet embassy here who bared operations of a Russian spy network in Canada in 1945.

Jenner said his committee could not pledge to keep the Gouzenko testimony secret.

In a letter to State Secretary Dulles asking that negotiations be continued with Canada, Jenner added: "At the same time, if there is reason to keep the evidence secret, the subcommittee will use the discretion it always has used in these matters affecting security and comity between nations."

External Affairs Minister Pearson, who outlined Canada's position in the case Wednesday in the Commons and tabled the reply to the second U.S. request to question Gouzenko, said of the Jenner statement: "We came to our decision after careful consideration. We will look carefully at any new proposal that may come from the state department."

DECLINES COMMENT

He declined further comment, but other government sources said Canada is extremely unlikely to back down on the conditions. The government has given the matter a lot of thought and its stand has been approved by all sections of the opposition.

Tory Forces Win Vote on Television

LONDON (CP)—Government supporters tonight defeated by a vote of 157 to 87 an attempt by "rebel" Conservative peers in the House of Lords to condemn plans for introducing commercial television in Britain.

The vote followed a spirited two-day debate in which a powerful group of Tory lords urged Prime Minister Churchill's government to drop its scheme to set up a public corporation which would operate TV stations in rivalry with the state-owned BBC.

With the support of some Liberals and Labor peers, the "rebels" had objected to the plan to provide time on the new stations for advertising. They agreed that a second TV network was desirable but urged that it be run by the BBC.

Meanwhile, a Conservative rebellion against Churchill's war pension policy spread in the Commons despite government efforts to head it off.

Prince Alexandre de Liechtenstein... he piles lumber.

JUST CALL ME ALEX...

Liechtenstein Prince Labors in City Mill

By TONY DICKSON

"Call me Alex," says Prince Alexandre de Liechtenstein. He says it with an accent, with cultured overtones and a broad, friendly grin.

The six-foot one-inch prince has been working in Victoria the past week, piling lumber. "I like it and I'm learning," he says.

Prince Alex has been in Canada just 10 days after studying forestry in Vienna. "Wood is wood, but here it is bigger," he says.

The 24-year-old prince "just wants to be one of the fellows" and hopes "the firm is not angry because I talk with you." He comes from the reigning house of the tiny principality of Liechtenstein (population 12,000), tucked in the Alps between Austria and Switzerland.

As Alex explains, it, his country was originally a wealthy man's hobby. In 1712 John Adam Liechtenstein—a "great-great great"—I am not sure—grandfather bought the place from Austria. The reigning prince is Franz Joseph Liechtenstein. Alex's father is Franz Joseph's cousin.

The title "prince" is limited to male members of the ruling Liechtenstein family. Daughters are called "princess." Alex's sister Elizabeth—Princess Elizabeth—is working for dress designer Christian Dior of Paris.

About his work here Prince Alex said it is "hard. But I'll be used to it soon. I do my best."

NICE—BUT LONELY

His employers said the prince is "a very pleasant chap with a nice personality." He's not wealthy. His salary is his sole support. Before the war his family had "plenty" of money, but today things have changed.

Alex lives in a small room. His landlady, who knows nothing about his aristocratic background, said: "I don't know anything about any princes. Living here. But there is one tall young man who could be one."

She was right. Alex is "not married." He expressed the somewhat wistful thought he would not be averse to meeting a few Victoria girls. He doesn't care about titles, only first names.

'FELLOW' AND 'POLITE' DEFEAT CROSSWORDERS

More than 7,000 entries were submitted in this week's Times crossword contest, but no one came up with a correct answer. Biggest stumbling blocks were the words "fellow" for 6 down and "polite" for 9 across.

The correct answer is on Page 27. With no winners this week the next puzzle, No. 36, appearing tomorrow, will be worth a total of $175.

B.C. Growers Discuss Farm Problems Here

West's Atom Arms Not Best Says Russia

South Korea Warns War Danger Real

Unity Necessary To Peace, Says RoKs

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—South Korea warned today it still expects the peninsula to be unified by Jan. 27—or else.

Foreign Minister Pyun Yang Tae cautioned the RoK government "might do something which the world will know about" if the delayed and still uncalled Korean peace conference fails by that date.

Pyun refused to reveal what action his government may take if Korea is still split by Communism and Democracy on the deadline date. However, guarded RoK statements have threatened South Korea may re-open the war if the peace parley fails to give the nation one government by Jan. 27.

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—Communism China is building up Red military strength in North Korea, a South Korean diplomat charged today.

Gen. Kim Hong Il, envoy to Nationalist China, said the Peking government is shipping to North Korea "great amounts of munitions."

He blamed Russia for establishing an "international army" in its satellite states and although he did not name North Korea he apparently meant its army is Soviet-backed.

Gregory Majority Cut Two by Vote Recheck

Official Figures Tonight Or Friday; Recheck Slowed By Judicial-Recount Threat

By GORDON FORBES, Times Political Reporter

The first few hours' rechecking of ballots cast in the Tuesday by-election resulted in no appreciable change in standings. Returning Officer Alan B. Macfarlane said today.

But the recheck, which was requested by Finance Minister Einar Gunderson, is only in the early stages after starting at 9 a.m.

With 21 polls rechecked, Liberal George Gregory's 93-vote lead was cut to 91. This occurred when Mr. Gunderson picked up a vote and Mr. Gregory lost one during the check.

The returning officer, who first thought the recheck would not be completed until Friday night, said progress had been better than expected and the job may be finished tonight or Friday morning.

COUNTED LAST

The important 269 absentee votes cast by hospital patients and election workers will be counted last.

The recheck is being conducted at the returning officer's headquarters, 911 Government Street. More than a dozen workers are on the job.

They will work from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and from 7 to 10 p.m. The night work cannot be forced on them. Under the Elections Act the count can continue at night only by consent of the workers.

It is understood the returning officer had a faster system of

Vishinsky Claims Reds Have Other Weapons

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Russia's Andrei Vishinsky said today the West "doesn't have everything in the field of atomic weapons that the Soviet Union has."

Vishinsky told the UN's 60-nation political committee that both the United States and the Soviet Union have atomic and hydrogen bombs and then went on to claim possession of other weapons.

He did not specify what they were, but said Western government authorities should ask their scientific experts for reports on the progress of Soviet science and especially in the practical realm of applied science.

Vishinsky was replying to a statement made last week by British minister of state, Selwyn Lloyd. Lloyd told the committee that the Soviet Union plugged for an unconditional prohibition of the atomic and hydrogen bombs because that was a field where it was weaker than the West.

KEY WEAPON

Vishinsky said the West claimed the atomic bomb was a "key weapon" in its hands and said it is "likewise a key weapon in the hands of the Soviet Union."

It is "nothing but a myth," Vishinsky claimed, to say that the Soviet Union is weaker in the field of nuclear weapons than the Western powers.

Vishinsky was speaking in support of Russia's 1953-model "peace plan" which, among other things, calls for the unconditional prohibition of nuclear weapons.

Vishinsky asked why United States wanted air bases around the Soviet Union.

"So your airmen can meet Russian girls and play gramophone records of the 'you, you, you' variety?" he asked, "so you can cuddle up a little closer to the Soviet Union?"

"Oh no," he answered himself, "so you can invade the Soviet Union." If the west tries that, he declared, it will meet the fate of the German armies at Stalingrad.

WIRE BRIEFS

Russia to Join Big 3 Ministers' Meeting

MOSCOW (UP)—Informed sources said today that Russia has notified the Western Big Three that she is willing to participate in a Big Four foreign ministers' conference.

Russia has turned down a western proposal for a Big Four conference this month in Switzerland. The conference was to have discussed German and Austrian peace treaty conferences, but Russia made a series of demands which were impossible to meet.

Screen Stats Split

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Screen star Ida Lupino has separated again from actor Howard Duff and is contemplating a divorce, it was disclosed today.

Quake Kills One

TOKYO (AP)—One person was reported dead in the earthquake which rocked central and northern islands today. A 58-year-old farmer was electrocuted by a high tension wire snapped during the quake. No other casualties were reported.

Bank Rate Increase?

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Telegram said today that Canada's chartered banks will increase their interest rates on savings to 2 per cent from 1½ per cent effective next month.

All Hands Saved

YARMOUTH, England (UP)—A British vessel, the 519-ton Marsworth, collided with another ship early today and sank in the North Sea five miles off the east coast of England.

All hands were saved.

Accept Contract

VANCOUVER (CP)—About 5,000 pulp and paper workers in British Columbia voted 85 per cent in favor of accepting a two-year contract which will give them pay increases totaling nine cents an hour by May 1, 1954.

2,000 KIDDIES VIEWED

Queen, Duke Busy On Jamaica Visit

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—The Queen today reviewed a military parade and greeted 2,000 school children in colorful ceremonies marking the second day of the Royal visit to this British rum and sugar colony.

The children waited four abreast in 16 rows on the length of the cricket field at Kingston's Sabina park for the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Proudest youngster of them all was Barbara Le Wars, 15, who thanked the Queen "for the great delight you have given the children of Jamaica." She presented an array of Jamaican handicraft products to the Royal couple as a token of "the loyalty and affection which all the people of this island feel for you."

At the parade the Queen met the island's top military figures and their wives.

A tour of Kingston and a formal welcome from the legislature at Government House were also on the program.

TRAFFIC JAMS

Police struggled to keep roads clear for official traffic. Many were still stuck in traffic jams when the Queen and the Duke arrived at Up Park camp.

Here the royal couple saw detachments of the Royal Navy with the first battalion Royal Welch Fusiliers—of which the Queen is colonel-in-chief—the Jamaica Battalion, auxiliary services of the army, the Women's Royal Army Corps, the British Legion and others.

The Queen and the Duke stood up in an open car as it drove around the parade grounds.

Elizabeth wore a short-sleeved green dress with an emerald green hat, white gloves and white shoes.

PLAY! GREENSLEEVES

As her car drove around the ranks, massed bands from the cruiser Sheffield, the Royal Welch Fusiliers and the Jamaica Battalion played "Greensleeves," traditionally played when the sovereign is inspecting troops.

The sovereign appeared refreshed for her full day's program after a good night's sleep in the governor's stately mansion. She slept in an antique four-poster bed.
